Gen. Yamashita, In Petition, Asks Supreme Court Hearing in U. S.

Jap Commander Appeals to Tribunal To Halt Trial before American Military Commission

MANILA, Dec. 3 (AP) — Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, who recently drew a blank in his efforts to have his war crimes case taken out of the hands of an American military commission by the Philippines Supreme Court, appealed today to the United States Supreme Court to halt his trial here and take him to Washington for a hearing.

Yamashita also asked the highest American tribunal for a "writ of prohibition" forbidding continuation of his trial as a war criminal, and requested that the court order him returned to the status of prisoner of war "in conformity with provisions of the Geneva convention."

His petition pointed out that the Philippines were not under martial law, or under military government, nor were there any active hostilities there at the time the commission trying him was appointed; therefore "there was no authority to appoint the commission and it is without jurisdiction."

Recess Is Declared

The Philippines Supreme Court on November 28 rejected a petition by Yamashita's attorneys for a writ of habeas corpus that would have transferred him to the jurisdiction of the commonwealth's courts. It did this despite the fact that the army ignored its summons and sent no representative to the hearing.

The army's view was that the Philippines courts had no jurisdiction over its actions.

Presentation of testimony in Yamashita's month-long war crimes trial ended on a note of confusion tonight as opposing counsel agreed that some of the questions asked of the defendant in English had a different meaning in Japanese.

Maj. Gen. Russell B. Reynolds, president of the military court, resolved the linguistic riddle with a ruling that in doubtful cases the chief interpreter's decision would be final.

Reynolds then declared a recess until Wednesday to allow attorneys time to prepare their final arguments, and said the court expected to be able to announce its verdict on Friday.

Yamashita himself was the last witness to take the stand. He was recalled by defense counsel to counter damaging testimony by the prosecution's rebuttal witnesses.

Blames Jap Army Groups

In a final effort to emphasize his contention that he was not responsible for alleged Japanese atrocities in the Philippines, the general testified that one of his army groups had the power of life and death over prisoners and he was helpless to intervene.

He said the Thirty-fifth army group operating east of Manila, where prosecution witnesses have testified many atrocities were committed, had authority to appoint courts-martial and try prisoners of war and internees. The army group was vested with this power at the time of its activation, he explained, and he was without authority to take it away.

Earlier in the session the prosecution's star rebuttal witness, Col. Hideo Nishihara, became lost in a maze of defense questions attacking his credibility. His replies of "I don't know" or "I think I have forgotten" became so frequent that Reynolds finally intervened to protest that the witness was "getting everyone confused."

Miles Says That U. S. Had No Secret Foreign Intelligence Service before War Started

By WILLIAM ^ PEACOCK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP) — Army's pre-Pearl Harbor intelligence chief testified today that the United States had no secret foreign intelligence service before the war and that a joint army-navy intelligence committee existed only on paper.

Maj. Gen. Sherman Miles, appearing before the joint congressional committee investigating Pearl Harbor, said that difficulties over office space figured in failure of the joint army-navy board, technically created in October, 1941, to meet until two days after the Japanese attack on the American fleet.

Its functioning also was delayed, he said, by differences between the War and Navy departments over just what duties it should perform.

Miles cited these difficulties as among the reasons why "I believe thoroughly and have for many years in the unification of the services."

Asked by Sen. Lucas (D-Ill), if the United States should maintain a foreign secret intelligence service in peacetime, Miles declared:

La ted Money for Espionage

He commented that before the war the army "never had any money for espionage."

Miles amplified under questioning from Rep. Murphy (D-Pa) earlier testimony that all military men knew a possible attack on Hawaii was "inherent" in any war with Japan.

However, he did not believe there was anyone in high place, Miles said, who anticipated in the tense days of 1941 that such an attack was Japan's "most likely" initial move if she decided to risk war.

It was the bulky general's third day in the witness chair. For the most part, his questioning revolved about the warning messages sent from Washington to overseas army station.

Miles emphatically demurred when Rep. Gearhart (R-Calif) suggested that an admonition not to "alarm civil population," contained in a message to Hawaii, led commanders there not to order a full state of alert.

In his opinion, Miles said, a full alert could have been ordered without alarming civilians.

Short's Reply Was "Inadequate"

He contended that Lt. Gen. Walter C. Short, army commander in Hawaii, made a "totally inadequate" reply when—in response to a warning from Washington—he reported that he had alerted his command against sabotage.

But the witness declined to express an opinion as to whether officials at the War department should have detected the alleged inadequacy.

Miles said in reply to a question that the message Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, sent to Hawaii November 27, 1941, was "sufficient warning to cause the necessary and proper alert to be put into effect."

When Rep. Clark (D-NC) asked whether anyone at the War depart-

Son of Marine Hero Has Medal of Honor Placed around Neck

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Seven-month-old John Harlan Willis II gurgled contentedly in his mother's arms today as Secretary of the Navy Forrestal placed around his neck the Congressional Medal of Honor.

The award was presented posthumously to his father, John Harlan Willis, Colombia, Tenn., pharmacist's mate first class who died on Iwo Jima last February 28.

Willis was serving with the Fifth marine division. Although wounded, he returned to the front lines to administer blood plasma to a wounded man. He threw back eight hand grenades which fell in the shell hole where he was working on his patient. The ninth, however, exploded in his hand and killed him.

Chiang's Forces Move on Mukden

By SPENCER MOOSA

CHUNGKING, Dec. 3, (AP)—Chinese Nationalist forces advancing in Manchuria were reported within thirty miles of the important city of Mukden today and their commander said "We expect to be in Harbin in a month or so."

Chinese Central news agency said press dispatches reporting the new gains said air transportation of Nationalist troops farther into Manchuria would start next week.

An Associated Press dispatch from Peiping said that Nationalist officials, who had fled from Changchun, Manchurian capital, in mid-November for fear that Russian withdrawal would leave them at the mercy of the Chinese Communists, were preparing to return tomorrow and take over the government.

Among these officials is Chiang Chung-Kuo, eldest son of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. He said he would discuss with the Russians the projected airborne Nationalist troop movement.

House Votes To Extend Second War Powers Act

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The House today passed and sent to the Senate legislation extending most provisions of the Second War Powers act—including rationing and priorities over scarce materials—until June 30, 1946.

Sailor Appeals to School Children To Help Locate His Kidnaped Baby

CHELSEA, Mass., Dec. 3. (AP)—Hundreds of school children responded today to the appeal of a sailor, James J. Carlan, to help find his kidnaped 6-month-old baby, Ronald, whom Carlan has never seen.

City and school officials and police joined with Carlan and his wife, Rose, 23, in asking all school children of this Boston suburb to report any clues that may lead to the finding of the baby—taken from his carriage six days ago, apparently by an elderly woman.

A 7-year-old girl told the police that she saw such a woman, dressed in black, remove the baby from the carriage near the Carlan home.

The sailor, who hastened home from Oakland, Calif., went with Mrs. Carlan to a special assembly of the Williams grammam school today.

Mrs. Carlan was unable to speak, but the young sailor, told the children:

"My little son, whom I have never seen, is missing." And he pleaded, "If you know anything which would help us to find him, please go to the police immediately."

Similar requests were sent to all other public and parochial schools by police and school officials and by Mayor Bernard L. Sullivan, who said he was seeking the co-operation of the city council in offering a reward for the finding of the infant. Other organizations already have offered $750.

Prayers for the return of the child have been offered in the city's churches and the parents have made appeals by radio.

Surgical Miracle May Save Child, 2

By JAMES E. HAGUE

BALTIMORE, Dec. 3. (AP)—Living proof of a surgical miracle brought rosy-cheeked Judith Hackman, 2, from Buckley, Wash., today in the hope that operative genius can do for her what it did for Charles "Dickey" Walker—save her from the doom of a "blue baby."

Judy flew from Seattle to Baltimore to undergo examination at the Johns Hopkins hospital which will decide whether or not the famous "Blalock operation" will be performed. Accompanying her were her mother, Mrs. Henry Hackman; the family doctor, F. O. Wilson, and "Herby," her doll.

Doctors told her parents that Judy had only a year to live, because not enough blood gets to her lungs to sustain life. But then Mrs. Hackman heard of "Dickey" Walker, 4, another Washington "blue baby."

On July 15, 1945, the same early death threatened him as it does Judy today. But Dr. W. W. Bacon, Seattle, brought him to Hopkins for an operation discovered by Dr. Alfred Blalock and Dr. Helen B. Taussig. Dr. Blalock is Hopkins professor of Surgery. Dr. Taussig is chief of the cardiac clinic at the Harriet Lane home for invalid children at Hopkins. The operation was performed July 18.

The Hackmans learned from Dr. Bacon that now Dickey is full of pep and doesn't seem to tire under any circumstances. His blue tinge is gone. They hoped that Dr. Blalock could do the same for the daughter—make a good artery help a deficient one get enough blood into the lungs for oxygenation.

Moscow Rejects U. S. Plea To Move Troops from Iran

State Department Fails To Give Reason for Russian Rejection

By JOHN HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The State department said tonight that Russia had rejected an American request that all Allied troops be withdrawn from Iran by January 1.

The reason for the Russian rejection was not given the department which has proposed to Moscow publication of its note received here over the weekend.

Officials presumed, they said, that the withdrawal date for both British and Russian troops still stands at March 2. President Truman was described as intent upon this government's objective of withdrawing all American troops by January 1.

Impossible to Accede, Reds Say

The United States had proposed the latter date to London and Moscow in a special note ten days ago, arguing that the best way to restore peace and security to the troubled Middle Eastern country was to get all foreign troops out as quickly as possible.

Of the Russian reply, Michael J. McDermott, State department information officer, said simply that the Russians had advised the United States government they do not find it possible to accede to the American request that British and Russian troops also be withdrawn by the first of January.

This development came after dispatches from Tehran told how the Iranian government was petitioning Moscow for permission to transport Iranian troops into Azerbaijan province where armed rebel groups were reported to have seized police and government officials.

Tehran Request Denied

Previously the Russians had turned down a Tehran request that troops be allowed to enter the province and had warned that the presence of more Iranian troops there might increase fighting and bloodshed.

The United States has been especially anxious to find out whether in Russian activities there has been denial of the rights of the Iranian government to exercise sovereign authority over its own territory, to maintain law and order and to send troops wherever necessary within its own borders.

The Russians have argued all along that they would take no part in the political developments in Azerbaijan province which their army occupies, but American officials have strongly indicated that they would oppose any use of foreign troops in Iran which even possibly deprived the government of power to control its own territory.

Iran Makes Reds New Offer

TEHRAN, Iran, Dec. 3 (AP)—The Iranian government told Russia today that it would be willing "to meet the legislative people" in troubled Azerbaijan province, presumably to discuss demands for local autonomy, as soon as order is restored in Northern Iran.

The governmeint's offer, considered by some cabinet members as the inauguration of an appeasement policy, was made in a note replying to a Russian refusal to permit Iranian reinforcements from entering the province on the ground that their presence would cause further fighting and bloodshed.

The Iranian forces would be used only to prevent disorder or aggression, the note said, and "in this way

Italian Foreign Minister Forms New Government

ROME, Tuesday, Dec. 4. (AP) — Foreign Minister Alcide de Gasperi said earlly today he had succeeded in forming a new Italian government to succeed that of Ferruccio Parri, whose coalition cabinet fell November 24.

De Gasperi had been conferring with the heads of Italy's six major political parties for several days in an attempt to reach a compromise on the allotting of key cabinet posts.

He made the announcement after Liberals (rightists) accepted new proposals for entering the government. The Liberals and the Social Democrats precipitated the governmental crisis when they withdrew after feuding with Leftists over control of machinery for the elections next spring and Fascist purge measures, forcing Parri's resignation as premier.

Leone Cattani, Liberal party secretary, said the party decided to enter the cabinet because of its "great esteem for de Gasperi."

"We feel he is the best man in Italy at this time," Cattani said, adding that the Liberals also decided to adhere to the new government because "its base is broadened."

Although an official list of new cabinet ministers has not yet been compiled, it was understood that Vittorio Emmanuel Orlando— who previously had been backed by the Liberals for the premiership—will get the post of vice premier. Monarchists had been pushing Orlando, World War One Italian leader, for the premiership, but Leftists refused to accept him.

The post of minister of the interior, it was understood, will go to the Socialists. In view of the forthcoming national elections this post had assumed vital importance during the conferences leading up to formation of the new government and was the chief obstacle in the crisis.

U. S. Prosecutor Unveils "Inside Story" of Munich

Nazi Treachery in Seizure of Czechoslovakia Is Laid Bare

By NOLAND NORGAARD

NUERNBERG, Germany, Dec. 3 (AP)—An American prosecutor today laid bare before the international war crimes tribunal Hitler's most famous act of treachery—how he told the world he had no more territorial claims to make and at the same time secretly planned to attack Czechoslovakia.

Unfolding what he called the "inside story" of the Munich pact, Sidney S. Alderman, assistant United States prosecutor, pointed to the twenty solemn Nazi leaders in the prisoners' box and declared that the Munich agreement "was a trap set by these people who are here on trial."

Throughout the day he presented evidence to support his assertion, tracing step by step the historic four-power meeting at Munich in September, 1938, then the German occupation of the Sudetenland and finally the seizure of Moravia and Bohemia.

Hitler, Keitel Discussed "Pretext"

Official Nazi documents showed that one month after the occupation of Austria in March, 1938, Hitler and Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel met to discuss a "pretext" for the invasion of Czechoslovakia and that from then on plans went forward, despite Hitler's pious assertions and his signature of the Munich pact on September 30, 1938.

Germany's intentions were made clear in numerous documents such as a directive from Hitler dated May 30, 1938, which opened with the words: "It is my unalterable decision to smash Czechoslovakia by military action in the near future. It is the job of the political leaders to bring about the politically or militarily suitable moment."

Alderman also introduced documents showing that Hungary had agreed to participation in the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia and had informed Hitler that she would be ready by October 1. The Hungarian government, Alderman disclosed, was reluctant at first, but agreed after Germany told Hungary that if she wanted to take part in the "eating" of her neighbor state she would also have to participate in the "cooking"—the invasion.

The American prosecutor introduced a memorandum from Col. Gen. Alfred Jodl, one of the defendants, to Hitler dated August 24, 1938, which he said showed Jodl's complicity in "the shameful fabrication" of an "excuse for war."

Agreement Delayed Attack

The Munich agreement delayed the attack, but Alderman presented documents to show that the Nazi leaders never abandoned their plans to smash their little neighbor.

About three weeks after Neville Chamberlain returned from Munich to utter his famous "peace in our time" phrase, Hitler ordered the German armed forces to prepare for "the liquidation of the remainder of Czechoslovakia and the occupation of Memelland."

Hitler's treachery went even beyond the military sphere, the evidence showed. Into the growing mountain of documents, went the foreign office minutes of a conference January 21, 1939, at which Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop told the Czech foreign minister that a reduction in the size of the Czech army would be a "decisive" factor in German-Czech relations.

Alderman also presented evidence showing that the Sudeten party in Czechoslovakia was being subsidized by the Germans from 1935 on and that the party leader, Konrad Helein, went on the Nazi payroll as early as 1933.

McVay's Counsel Is Unsuccessful In Opening Move

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3— (AP) — Capt. Charles B. McVay III, commander of the ill-fated Indianapolis, was unsuccessful in his first defense move today before a navy general court-martial trying him on charges of negligence and inefficiency.

The heavy cruiser was sunk last July 30 in the Philippine sea. Of its 1,196-man crew, 880 are dead or missing and all the remainder were injured.

As the court convened at the Washington navy yard, McVay's counsel, Capt. John P. Cady, Providence, R. I., objected to the first charge: "Through negligence, suffering a vessel of the navy to be hazarded."

The specifications alleged that McVay "neglected and failed" to order a zig-zag course while traveling without escort from Guam to Leyte through an area "in which enemy submarines might be encountered."

The defense contended that the charge "failed to state an offense," but simply "set out a conclusion."

After a brief deliberation, the seven-man court headed by Rear Adm. Wilder D. Baker overruled the objection. The court's instructions, Baker said, stated it was not essential to specify that the accused officer committed a breach of federal statutes or naval regulations.

McVay entered no objection to the form of the second charge, that he was guilty of "culpable inefficiency in the performance of duty."

Specifications of that charge accused him of failing to issue "such timely orders as were necessary to cause said vessel to be abandoned, as it was his duty to do, by reason of which inefficiency many persons on board perished with the sinking of said vessel."

Union Leaders Oppose Truman's Proposals for Handling Labor Disputes and Ending GM Strike

CIO-UAW Will Act Saturday on President's Request To Terminate Strike at GM Plants

DETROIT, Dec. 3—(AP)—Heads of the CIO's United Auto Workers bluntly disapproved President Truman's proposal for ending the General Motors strike today but left the final verdict to the union's rank and file.

The auto union's leadership summoned a conference of 250 representatives of General Motors locals for Saturday to act on the president's proposal for an immediate end to the walkout idling 225,000 workers.

President R. J. Thomas, of the union, told a press conference he was "not sold" on Mr. Truman's proposal, which included the setting up of a fact-finding board to make recommendations in the dispute.

Then, when asked if he meant he was "not in favor" of Mr. Truman's plan, Thomas said:

"I am not. That is my own opinion."

Others Disapprove Plan

Joining with Thomas in expressing disapproval were the union's secretary-treasurer, George F. Addes, and Vice President Walter P. Reuther, head of the UAW-CIO's General Motors department and chief negotiator of the union's demand on GM for a thirty per cent wage rate increase.

"If I were a GM worker and voting (on an end to the strike), I would certainly not be willing to go back to work with only the president's proposal as a basis for settling the strike," Reuther said.

Addes said "I would want something more tangible if I were voting."

Thomas emphasized that the decision would be up to a vote of the strikers, asserting "the workers will vote the way they want to. Ours is the most democratic union in the world."

The president made his proposal for ending the GM strike, now in its fourteenth day, in presenting a legislative program to Congress to halt increasing labor strife.

Other Developments

The presidential intervention in the strike of UAW-CIO members seeking to enforce their demands on General Motors for a thirty per cent wage increase within present price structures highlighted a day which also saw these developments:

1. The union asked the Justice department to investigate General Motors with a view to anti-trust proceedings based on control of a large part of the automobile industry's supply of engine fuel pumps.

2. Thomas denied authorship of a letter issued by his publicity de-

Russian Agent May Have Stolen Atomic Secrets

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—The New York Journal-American said today in a copyrighted story that for the last two years the Federal Bureau of Investigation has been trailing a Russian secret service agent "who, it is believed, may have obtained atomic bomb secrets."

The New York FBI office said it had no comment on he story.

And in Washington, the State department, the FBI National headquarters and the Russian embassy also declined comment.

The paper said FBI agents found a package in the agent's room in Chicago in 1943 that "was found to contain highly-confidential details of atomic development."

The paper said the agent was living now in a midtown hotel and was surrounded by a squad of FBI men, operating on a twenty-four-hour basis. It did not give his name.

The Journal-American said the agent entered the United States from Canda in 1938 and carried forged passports. The man first appeared in the United States in 1931 as a member of a Soviet purchasing commission, but returned to Moscow the same year, the paper added.

The newspaper related that the man was "employed" by an obscure music shop on Fifth avenue here at $75 a week, but had accounts running into the thousands of dollars in Manhattan banks.

The paper said the FBI first got

English Bride Flies Atlantic To Join AAF Captain, Not Husband

DUBUQUE, Ia., Dec. 3 (AP)—Capt. Darrell Beschen, 25-year-old hero of the air war over Europe, and a pretty, titian-haired English girl who flew the Atlantic to join him instead of her husband, emerged from hiding this afternoon to announce:

"We are going to stay together and see what happens."

Beschen and the girl, Mrs. Jean Gloor Carbone, 19, wife of Army Lt. Harold Carbone, now a student at the University of Rochester (N. Y.), said they would marry as soon as Carbone obtained a divorce—which she said he assured her by telephone he would do at once.

Mrs. Carbone had been the object of a widespread search since her arrival in Chicago last week and her subsequent disappearance which led to Carbone's appeal to the Red Cross to help find her.

Jap Diet Is Told Tax Increases Are Necessary

TOKYO, Dec. 3—(AP)—The Japanese Diet, operating under the shadows of growing domestic unrest and new American probing into war responsibilities, was told today that heavy tax increases would be required to meet a proposed budget of 13,600,000,000 yen (about $907,000,000 at the official exchange rate.)

Finance Minister Keizo Shibusawa, presenting the budget to the House of Representatives, said estimated revenues would meet less than two-thirds of it. He called for increases in income taxes, luxury taxes, many indirect taxes and higher prices for sake and tobacco, which are government monopolies.

Bush Says Roosevelt Decided To Use New Incendiary Bombs on Japanese

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. (AP)—Dr. Vannevar Bush tonight said the decision to drop new incendiary bombs on Japan was made by President Roosevelt but that the late president did not make the decision on use of the atomic bomb.

An Associated Press story had erroneously quoted Dr. Bush, the scientist who headed the war work of American scientific laboratories, as saying Mr. Roosevelt had made the decision to use both weapons.

But Dr Bush said later, in response to a reporter's question, that he had referred only to the new incendiary bombs.

He told the special Senate committee on atomic energy that the decision to use the fearsome new incendiaries against Japan's cities to order to destroy her industry was made personally by the late president.

Dr. Bush said later that the atomic bomb had not been tested prior to Mr. Roosevelt's death.

There was some question whether to use the new incendiaries on Japanese cities because they would kill so many civilians, Dr. Bush told the Senate committee:

"The decision to use them was made by President Roosevelt," he declared. "There was a serious problem in my mind and I was glad I did not have to make the decision."

Bush expressed belief that the atomic bomb "means the end of world war."

The scientist who directed the development of this and other weapons as head of the National Defense Research Committee and the Office of Scientific Research and development predicted it would take a long time to set up atomic controls.

But he told the special Senate committee on atomic energy that all the nations now want a long peace and this period can be used to develop the control machinery. He added that two nations armed with atomic bombs would not consider going to war against each other because the consequences would be "too terrible."

Congress Is Asked To Authorize Fact-finding with Work Stoppages Barred for 30 Days

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. (AP) — President Truman today asked Congress to authorize fact-finding in big labor disputes—with work stoppages barred for thirty days—and requested 225,000 striking General Motors employes to go back to work.

In a special message, he asked quick legislation under which he could set up fact-finding boards to recommend settlements in crucial disputes. Under the legislation strikes and lockouts would be prohibited while the boards worked.

He announced that meanwhile he would create such boards for the gravest present crisis, the twenty-state General Motors strike of CIO auto workers, and for the gravest industrial threat, the nationwide steel wage dispute. The steel workers were requested not to strike.

President Eric A. Johnston, of the United States Chamber of Commerce, issued a statement endorsing the fact-finding principle, but withholding judgment on Mr. Truman's actual plan until he learned the possible "form and scope" of the legislation.

Labor Comment Is Adverse

The available labor comment was adverse. AFL President William Green stated his belief the plan would be "unacceptable to labor." In Detroit, three CIO leaders voiced dissatisfaction with the back-to-work proposal, but announced that General Motors workers would hold a meeting Saturday to decide what course to take.

On Capitol Hill, senators interviewed varied in their reaction from quick approval to the opinion that Mr. Truman's plan did not go far enough.

In the House a move developed for a joint Senate-House committee to recommend national labor legislation. A resolution for such a committee was introduced by Rep. Smith (D-Va).

Smith later introduced a bill to set up, for industry and labor generally, mediation boards modeled after the railway mediation boards.

The legislation also would outlaw sympathy and jurisdictional strikes and require unions to register with a federal agency and make annual financial statements.

Warning that present stoppages are so serious as possibly to "cripple our reconversion program," Mr. Truman asked for passage of the fact-finding bill before Congress's Christmas recess, which is to start December 20, seventeen days away.

Boards Lack Authority

Besides asking the CIO United Automobile Workers to resume work in GM's far-flung plants, Mr. Truman wired United States Steel Corporation and the CIO United Steel Workers to permit no break in production while the fact-finding board assigned to their wage dispute goes to work.

Benjamin F. Fairless, United States Steel president, announced the corporation would give "immediate attention" to Mr. Truman's wire and send a reply "as soon as possible."

The GM president, C. E. Wilson, said in New York he had not yet received the presidential telegram and would need time to study it.

The fact-finding boards set up for steel and automobiles would work exactly like those proposed to Congress, government officials said, but lacking legislative authority, they would depend on voluntary co-operation of the companies and unions.

Expressing his disappointment that industry and union leaders had failed to agree on machinery for peaceful settlement of disputes as the national labor-management conference which closed Friday night,

Youth, 14, Admits Killing Sister, 12

BANGOR Me. Dec. 3 (AP)—Twelve-year-old Teresa Varney was found stabbed to death today in the kitchen of her home and police said her brother Francis, 14, confessed that he had "struck" her with a knife.

The children's mother, Mrs. Esther Varney, collapsed and was unable to come with her son to municipal court where he pleaded innocent to a charge of murder and was ordered held for hearing December 10.

Police Chief Thomas I. Crowley said Francis, a junior high school pupil, signed a confession stating that he "struck" his sister with a knife. The six-inch blade, the chief said, pierced the girl's heart.

Chief Crowley said Francis "skipped" school today and was in the Varney kitchen when Teresa came home from school at noon with her younger brothers, Richard, 8, and Daniel, 9.

The boy's confession, Chief Crowley said, stated that he hit his sister with a flashlight, knocked her to a couch.

When she got up, the confession added, he reached for a knife, struck her with it and ran from the house.

Gen. Yamashita, In Petition, Asks Supreme Court Hearing in U. S.

Jap Commander Appeals to Tribunal To Halt Trial before American Military Commission

MANILA, Dec. 3 (AP) — Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, who recently drew a blank in his efforts to have his war crimes case taken out of the hands of an American military commission by the Philippines Supreme Court, appealed today to the United States Supreme Court to halt his trial here and take him to Washington for a hearing.

Yamashita also asked the highest American tribunal for a "writ of prohibition" forbidding continuation of his trial as a war criminal, and requested that the court order him returned to the status of prisoner of war "in conformity with provisions of the Geneva convention."

His petition pointed out that the Philippines were not under martial law, or under military government, nor were there any active hostilities there at the time the commission trying him was appointed; therefore "there was no authority to appoint the commission and it is without jurisdiction."

Recess Is Declared

The Philippines Supreme Court on November 28 rejected a petition by Yamashita's attorneys for a writ of habeas corpus that would have transferred him to the jurisdiction of the commonwealth's courts. It did this despite the fact that the army ignored its summons and sent no representative to the hearing.

The army's view was that the Philippines courts had no jurisdiction over its actions.

Presentation of testimony in Yamashita's month-long war crimes trial ended on a note of confusion tonight as opposing counsel agreed that some of the questions asked of the defendant in English had a different meaning in Japanese.

Maj. Gen. Russell B. Reynolds, president of the military court, resolved the linguistic riddle with a ruling that in doubtful cases the chief interpreter's decision would be final.

Reynolds then declared a recess until Wednesday to allow attorneys time to prepare their final arguments, and said the court expected to be able to announce its verdict on Friday.

Yamashita himself was the last witness to take the stand. He was recalled by defense counsel to counter damaging testimony by the prosecution's rebuttal witnesses.

Blames Jap Army Groups

In a final effort to emphasize his contention that he was not responsible for alleged Japanese atrocities in the Philippines, the general testified that one of his army groups had the power of life and death over prisoners and he was helpless to intervene.

He said the Thirty-fifth army group operating east of Manila, where prosecution witnesses have testified many atrocities were committed, had authority to appoint courts-martial and try prisoners of war and internees. The army group was vested with this power at the time of its activation, he explained, and he was without authority to take it away.

Earlier in the session the prosecution's star rebuttal witness, Col. Hideo Nishihara, became lost in a maze of defense questions attacking his credibility. His replies of "I don't know" or "I think I have forgotten" became so frequent that Reynolds finally intervened to protest that the witness was "getting everyone confused."

Surgical Miracle May Save Child, 2

By JAMES E. HAGUE

BALTIMORE, Dec. 3. (AP)—Living proof of a surgical miracle brought rosy-cheeked Judith Hackman, 2, from Buckley, Wash., today in the hope that operative genius can do for her what it did for Charles "Dickey" Walker—save her from the doom of a "blue baby."

Judy flew from Seattle to Baltimore to undergo examination at the Johns Hopkins hospital which will decide whether or not the famous "Blalock operation" will be performed. Accompanying her were her mother, Mrs. Henry Hackman; the family doctor, F. O. Wilson, and "Herby," her doll.

Doctors told her parents that Judy had only a year to live, because not enough blood gets to her lungs to sustain life. But then Mrs. Hackman heard of "Dickey" Walker 4, another Washington "blue baby."

On July 15, 1945, the same early death threatened him as it does Judy today. But Dr. W. W. Bacon, Seattle, brought him to Hopkins for an operation discovered by Dr. Alfred Blalock and Dr. Helen B. Taussig. Dr. Blalock is Hopkins professor of Surgery. Dr. Taussig is chief of the cardiac clinic at the Harriet Lane home for invalid children at Hopkins. The operation was performed July 18.

The Hackmans learned from Dr. Bacon that now Dickey is full of pep and doesn't seem to tire under any circumstances. His blue tinge is gone. They hoped that Dr. Blalock could do the same for their daughter—make a good artery help a deficient one get enough blood into the lungs for oxygenation.

Miles Says That U. S. Had No Secret Foreign Intelligence Service before War Started

By WILLIAM ^ PEACOCK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP) — Army's pre-Pearl Harbor intelligence chief testified today that the United States had no secret foreign intelligence service before the war and that a joint army-navy intelligence committee existed only on paper.

Maj. Gen. Sherman Miles, appearing before the joint congressional committee investigating Pearl Harbor, said that difficulties over office space figured in failure of the joint army-navy board, technically created in October, 1941, to meet until two days after the Japanese attack on the American fleet.

Its functioning also was delayed, he said, by differences between the War and Navy departments over just what duties it should perform.

Miles cited these difficulties as among the reasons why "I believe thoroughly and have for many years in the unification of the services."

Asked by Sen. Lucas (D-Ill), if the United States should maintain a foreign secret intelligence service in peacetime, Miles declared:

La ^ed Money for Espionage

He commented that before the war the army "never had any money for espionage."

Miles amplified under questioning from Rep. Murphy (D-Pa) earlier testimony that all military men knew a possible attack on Hawaii was "inherent" in any war with Japan.

However, he did not believe there was anyone in high place, Miles said, who anticipated in the tense days of 1941 that such an attack was Japan's "most likely" initial move if she decided to risk war.

It was the bulky general's third day in the witness chair. For the most part, his questioning revolved about the warning messages sent from Washington to overseas army station.

Miles emphatically demurred when Rep. Gearhart (R-Calif) suggested that an admonition not to "alarm civil population," contained in a message to Hawaii, led commanders there not to order a full state of alert.

In his opinion, Miles said, a full alert could have been ordered without alarming civilians.

Short's Reply Was "Inadequate"

He contended that Lt. Gen. Walter C. Short, army commander in Hawaii, made a "totally inadequate" reply when—in response to a warning from Washington—he reported that he had alerted his command against sabotage.

But the witness declined to express an opinion as to whether officials at the War department should have detected the alleged inadequacy.

Miles said in reply to a question that the message Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, sent to Hawaii November 27, 1941, was "sufficient warning to cause the necessary and proper alert to be put into effect."

When Rep. Clark (D-NC) asked whether anyone at the War depart-

Son of Marine Hero Has Medal of Honor Placed around Neck

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Seven-month-old John Harlan Willis II gurgled contentedly in his mother's arms today as Secretary of the Navy Forrestal placed around his neck the Congressional Medal of Honor.

The award was presented posthumously to his father, John Harlan Willis, Colombia, Tenn., pharmacist's mate first class who died on Iwo Jima last February 28.

Willis was serving with the Fifth marine division. Although wounded, he returned to the front lines to administer blood plasma to a wounded man. He threw back eight hand grenades which fell in the shell hole where he was working on his patient. The ninth, however, exploded in his hand and killed him.

Chiang's Forces Move on Mukden

By SPENCER MOOSA

CHUNGKING, Dec. 3. (AP)—Chinese Nationalist forces advancing in Manchuria were reported within thirty miles of the important city of Mukden today and their commander said "We expect to be in Harbin in a month or so."

Chinese Central news agency said press dispatches reporting the new gains said air transportation of Nationalist troops farther into Manchuria would start next week.

An Associated Press dispatch from Peiping said that Nationalist officials, who had fled from Changchun, Manchurian capital, in mid-November for fear that Russian withdrawal would leave them at the mercy of the Chinese Communists, were preparing to return tomorrow and take over the government.

Among these officials is Chiang Chung-Kuo, eldest son of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. He said he would discuss with the Russians the projected airborne Nationalist troop movement.

House Votes To Extend Second War Powers Act

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The House today passed and sent to the Senate legislation extending most provisions of the Second War Powers act—including rationing and priorities over scarce materials—until June 30, 1946.

Sailor Appeals to School Children To Help Locate His Kidnaped Baby

CHELSEA, Mass., Dec. 3. (AP)—Hundreds of school children responded today to the appeal of a sailor, James J. Carlan, to help find his kidnaped 6-month-old baby, Ronald, whom Carlan has never seen.

City and school officials and police joined with Carlan and his wife, Rose, 23, in asking all school children of this Boston suburb to report any clues that may lead to the finding of the baby—taken from his carriage six days ago, apparently by an elderly woman.

A 7-year-old girl told the police that she saw such a woman, dressed in black, remove the baby from the carriage near the Carlan home.

The sailor, who hastened home from Oakland, Calif., went with Mrs. Carlan to a special assembly of the Williams grammam school today.

Mrs. Carlan was unable to speak, but the young sailor, told the children:

"My little son, whom I have never seen, is missing." And he pleaded, "If you know anything which would help us to find him, please go to the police immediately."

Similar requests were sent to all other public and parochial schools by police and school officials and by Mayor Bernard L. Sullivan, who said he was seeking the co-operation of the city council in offering a reward for the finding of the infant. Other organizations already have offered $750.

Prayers for the return of the child have been offered in the city's churches and the parents have made appeals by radio.

Moscow Rejects U. S. Plea To Move Troops from Iran

By JOHN HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The State department said tonight that Russia had rejected an American request that all Allied troops be withdrawn from Iran by January 1.

The reason for the Russian rejection was not given the department which has proposed to Moscow publication of its note received here over the weekend.

Officials presumed, they said, that the withdrawal date for both British and Russian troops still stands at March 2. President Truman was described as intent upon this government's objective of withdrawing all American troops by January 1.

Impossible to Accede, Reds Say

The United States had proposed the latter date to London and Moscow in a special note ten days ago, arguing that the best way to restore peace and security to the troubled Middle Eastern country was to get all foreign troops out as quickly as possible.

Of the Russian reply, Michael J. McDermott, State department information officer, said simply that the Russians had advised the United States government they do not find it possible to accede to the American request that British and Russian troops also be withdrawn by the first of January.

This development came after dispatches from Tehran told how the Iranian government was petitioning Moscow for permission to transport Iranian troops into Azerbaijan province where armed rebel groups were reported to have seized police and government officials.

Tehran Request Denied

Previously the Russians had turned down a Tehran request that troops be allowed to enter the province and had warned that the presence of more Iranian troops there might increase fighting and bloodshed.

The United States has been especially anxious to find out whether in Russian activities there has been denial of the rights of the Iranian government to exercise sovereign authority over its own territory, to maintain law and order and to send troops wherever necessary within its own borders.

The Russians have argued all along that they would take no part in the political developments in Azerbaijan province which their army occupies, but American officials have strongly indicated that they would oppose any use of foreign troops in Iran which even possibly deprived the government of power to control its own territory.

Iran Makes Reds New Offer

TEHRAN, Iran, Dec. 3 (AP)—The Iranian government told Russia today that it would be willing "to meet the legislative people" in troubled Azerbaijan province, presumably to discuss demands for local autonomy, as soon as order is restored in Northern Iran.

The government's offer, considered by some cabinet members as the inauguration of an appeasement policy, was made in a note replying to a Russian refusal to permit Iranian reinforcements from entering the province on the ground that their presence would cause further fighting and bloodshed.

The Iranian forces would be used only to prevent disorder or aggression, the note said, and "in this way

Italian Foreign Minister Forms New Government

ROME, Tuesday, Dec. 4. (AP) — Foreign Minister Alcide de Gasperi said earliy today he had succeeded in forming a new Italian government to succeed that of Ferruccio Parri, whose coalition cabinet fell November 24.

De Gasperi had been conferring with the heads of Italy's six major political parties for several days in an attempt to reach a compromise on the allotting of key cabinet posts.

He made the announcement after Liberals (rightists) accepted new proposals for entering the government. The Liberals and the Social Democrats precipitated the governmental crisis when they withdrew after feuding with Leftists over control of machinery for the elections next spring and Fascist purge measures, forcing Parri's resignation as premier.

Leone Cattani, Liberal party secretary, said the party decided to enter the cabinet because of its "great esteem for de Gasperi."

"We feel he is the best man in Italy at this time," Cattani said, adding that the Liberals also decided to adhere to the new government because "its base is broadened."

Although an official list of new cabinet ministers has not yet been compiled, it was understood that Vittorio Emmanuel Orlando— who previously had been backed by the Liberals for the premiership—will get the post of vice premier. Monarchists had been pushing Orlando, World War One Italian leader, for the premiership, but Leftists refused to accept him.

The post of minister of the interior, it was understood, will go to the Socialists. In view of the forthcoming national elections this post had assumed vital importance during the conferences leading up to formation of the new government and was the chief obstacle in the crisis.

U. S. Prosecutor Unveils "Inside Story" of Munich

By NOLAND NORGAARD

NUERNBERG, Germany, Dec. 3 (AP)—An American prosecutor today laid bare before the international war crimes tribunal Hitler's most famous act of treachery—how he told the world he had no more territorial claims to make and at the same time secretly planned to attack Czechoslovakia.

Unfolding what he called the "inside story" of the Munich pact, Sidney S. Alderman, assistant United States prosecutor, pointed to the twenty solemn Nazi leaders in the prisoners' box and declared that the Munich agreement "was a trap set by these people who are here on trial."

Throughout the day he presented evidence to support his assertion, tracing step by step the historic four-power meeting at Munich in September, 1938, then the German occupation of the Sudetenland and finally the seizure of Moravia and Bohemia.

Hitler, Keitel Discussed "Pretext"

Official Nazi documents showed that one month after the occupation of Austria in March, 1938, Hitler and Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel met to discuss a "pretext" for the invasion of Czechoslovakia and that from then on plans went forward, despite Hitler's pious assertions and his signature of the Munich pact on September 30, 1938.

Germany's intentions were made clear in numerous documents such as a directive from Hitler dated May 30, 1938, which opened with the words: "It is my unalterable decision to smash Czechoslovakia by military action in the near future. It is the job of the political leaders to bring about the politically or militarily suitable moment."

Alderman also introduced documents showing that Hungary had agreed to participation in the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia and had informed Hitler that she would be ready by October 1. The Hungarian government, Alderman disclosed, was reluctant at first, but agreed after Germany told Hungary that if she wanted to take part in the "eating" of her neighbor state she would also have to participate in the "cooking"—the invasion.

The American prosecutor introduced a memorandum from Col. Gen. Alfred Jodl, one of the defendants, to Hitler dated August 24, 1938, which he said showed Jodl's complicity in "the shameful fabrication" of an "excuse for war."

Agreement Delayed Attack

The Munich agreement delayed the attack, but Alderman presented documents to show that the Nazi leaders never abandoned their plans to smash their little neighbor.

About three weeks after Neville Chamberlain returned from Munich to utter his famous "peace in our time" phrase, Hitler ordered the German armed forces to prepare for "the liquidation of the remainder of Czechoslovakia and the occupation of Memelland."

Hitler's treachery went even beyond the military sphere, the evidence showed. Into the growing mountain of documents, went the foreign office minutes of a conference January 21, 1939, at which Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop told the Czech foreign minister that a reduction in the size of the Czech army would be a "decisive" factor in German-Czech relations.

Alderman also presented evidence showing that the Sudeten party in Czechoslovakia was being subsidized by the Germans from 1935 on and that the party leader, Konrad Helein, went on the Nazi payroll as early as 1933.

McVay's Counsel Is Unsuccessful In Opening Move

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3— (AP) — Capt. Charles B. McVay III, commander of the ill-fated Indianapolis, was unsuccessful in his first defense move today before a navy general court-martial trying him on charges of negligence and inefficiency.

The heavy cruiser was sunk last July 30 in the Philippine sea. Of its 1,196-man crew, 880 are dead or missing and all the remainder were injured.

As the court convened at the Washington navy yard, McVay's counsel, Capt. John P. Cady, Providence, R. I., objected to the first charge: "Through negligence, suffering a vessel of the navy to be hazarded."

The specifications alleged that McVay "neglected and failed" to order a zig-zag course while traveling without escort from Guam to Leyte through an area "in which enemy submarines might be encountered."

The defense contended that the charge "failed to state an offense," but simply "set out a conclusion."

After a brief deliberation, the seven-man court headed by Rear Adm. Wilder D. Baker overruled the objection. The court's instructions, Baker said, stated it was not essential to specify that the accused officer committed a breach of federal statutes or naval regulations.

McVay entered no objection to the form of the second charge, that he was guilty of "culpable inefficiency in the performance of duty."

Specifications of that charge accused him of failing to issue "such timely orders as were necessary to cause said vessel to be abandoned, as it was his duty to do, by reason of which inefficiency many persons on board perished with the sinking of said vessel."

Union Leaders Oppose Truman's Proposals for Handling Labor Disputes and Ending GM Strike

CIO-UAW Will Act Saturday on President's Request To Terminate Strike at GM Plants

DETROIT, Dec. 3—(AP)—Heads of the CIO's United Auto Workers bluntly disapproved President Truman's proposal for ending the General Motors strike today but left the final verdict to the union's rank and file.

The auto union's leadership summoned a conference of 250 representatives of General Motors locals for Saturday to act on the president's proposal for an immediate end to the walkout idling 225,000 workers.

President R. J. Thomas, of the union, told a press conference he was "not sold" on Mr. Truman's proposal, which included the setting up of a fact-finding board to make recommendations in the dispute.

Then, when asked if he meant he was "not in favor" of Mr. Truman's plan, Thomas said:

"I am not. That is my own opinion."

Others Disapprove Plan

Joining with Thomas in expressing disapproval were the union's secretary-treasurer, George F. Addes, and Vice President Walter P. Reuther, head of the UAW-CIO's General Motors department and chief negotiator of the union's demand on GM for a thirty per cent wage rate increase.

"If I were a GM worker and voting (on an end to the strike), I would certainly not be willing to go back to work with only the president's proposal as a basis for settling the strike," Reuther said.

Addes said "I would want something more tangible if I were voting."

Thomas emphasized that the decision would be up to a vote of the strikers, asserting "the workers will vote the way they want to. Ours is the most democratic union in the world."

The president made his proposal for ending the GM strike, now in its fourteenth day, in presenting a legislative program to Congress to halt increasing labor strife.

Other Developments

The presidential intervention in the strike of UAW-CIO members seeking to enforce their demands on General Motors for a thirty per cent wage increase within present price structures highlighted a day which also saw these developments:

1. The union asked the Justice department to investigate General Motors with a view to anti-trust proceedings based on control of a large part of the automobile industry's supply of engine fuel pumps.

2. Thomas denied authorship of a letter issued by his publicity de-

English Bride Flies Atlantic To Join AAF Captain, Not Husband

DUBUQUE, Ia., Dec. 3 (AP)—Capt. Darrell Beschen, 25-year-old hero of the air war over Europe, and a pretty, titian-haired English girl who flew the Atlantic to join him instead of her husband, emerged from hiding this afternoon to announce:

"We are going to stay together and see what happens."

Beschen and the girl, Mrs. Jean Gloor Carbone, 19, wife of Army Lt. Harold Carbone, now a student at the University of Rochester (N. Y.), said they would marry as soon as Carbone obtained a divorce—which she said he assured her by telephone he would do at once.

Mrs. Carbone had been the object of a widespread search since her arrival in Chicago last week and her subsequent disappearance which led to Carbone's appeal to the Red Cross to help find her.

GENERAL IS EXECUTED

FIRST HIGH-RANKING GERMAN to die for war crimes in Western Europe, Nazi Gen. Anton Dostler (above), 54, was shot by an American firing squad near Aversa, Italy, under sentence of a court. He was convicted of having ordered the execution of fifteen American soldiers in 1944.

Russian Agent May Have Stolen Atomic Secrets

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—The New York Journal-American said today in a copyrighted story that for the last two years the Federal Bureau of Investigation has been trailing a Russian secret service agent "who, it is believed, may have obtained atomic bomb secrets."

The New York FBI office said it had no comment on he story.

And in Washington, the State department, the FBI National headquarters and the Russian embassy also declined comment.

The paper said FBI agents found a package in the agent's room in Chicago in 1943 that "was found to contain highly-confidential details of atomic development."

The paper said the agent was living now in a midtown hotel and was surrounded by a squad of FBI men, operating on a twenty-four-hour basis. It did not give his name.

The Journal-American said the agent entered the United States from Canda in 1938 and carried forged passports. The man first appeared in the United States in 1931 as a member of a Soviet purchasing commission, but returned to Moscow the same year, the paper added.

The newspaper related that the man was "employed" by an obscure music shop on Fifth avenue here at $75 a week, but had accounts running into the thousands of dollars in Manhattan banks.

The paper said the FBI first got

Jap Diet Is Told Tax Increases Are Necessary

TOKYO, Dec. 3—(AP)—The Japanese Diet, operating under the shadows of growing domestic unrest and new American probing into war responsibilities, was told today that heavy tax increases would be required to meet a proposed budget of 13,600,000,000 yen (about $907,000,000 at the official exchange rate).

Finance Minister Keizo Shibusawa, presenting the budget to the House of Representatives, said estimated revenues would meet less than two-thirds of it. He called for increases in income taxes, luxury taxes, many indirect taxes and higher prices for sake and tobacco, which are government monopolies.

Bush Says Roosevelt Decided To Use New Incendiary Bombs on Japanese

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. (AP)—Dr. Vannevar Bush tonight said the decision to drop new incendiary bombs on Japan was made by President Roosevelt but that the late president did not make the decision on use of the atomic bomb.

An Associated Press story had erroneously quoted Dr. Bush, the scientist who headed the war work of American scientific laboratories, as saying Mr. Roosevelt had made the decision to use both weapons.

But Dr. Bush said later, in response to a reporter's question, that he had referred only to the new incendiary bombs.

He told the special Senate committee on atomic energy that the decision to use the fearsome new incendiaries against Japan's cities in order to destroy her industry was made personally by the late president.

Dr. Bush said later that the atomic bomb had not been tested prior to Mr. Roosevelt's death.

There was some question whether to use the new incendiaries on Japanese cities because they would kill so many civilians, Dr. Bush told the Senate committee.

"The decision to use them was made by President Roosevelt," he declared. "There was a serious problem in my mind and I was glad I did not have to make the decision."

Bush expressed belief that the atomic bomb "means the end of world war."

The scientist who directed the development of this and other weapons as head of the National Defense Research Committee and the Office of Scientific Research and development predicted it would take a long time to set up atomic controls.

But he told the special Senate committee on atomic energy that all the nations now want a long peace and this period can be used to develop the control machinery. He added that two nations armed with atomic bombs would not consider going to war against each other because the consequences would be "too terrible."

Congress Is Asked To Authorize Fact-finding with Work Stoppages Barred for 30 Days

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP) — President Truman today asked Congress to authorize fact-finding in big labor disputes—with work stoppages barred for thirty days—and requested 225,000 striking General Motors employes to go back to work.

In a special message, he asked quick legislation under which he could set up fact-finding boards to recommend settlements in crucial disputes. Under the legislation strikes and lockouts would be prohibited while the boards worked.

He announced that meanwhile he would create such boards for the gravest present crisis, the twenty-state General Motors strike of CIO auto workers, and for the gravest industrial threat, the nationwide steel wage dispute. The steel workers were requested not to strike.

President Eric A. Johnston, of the United States Chamber of Commerce, issued a statement endorsing the fact-finding principle, but withholding judgment on Mr. Truman's actual plan until he learned the possible "form and scope" of the legislation.

Labor Comment Is Adverse

The available labor comment was adverse. AFL President William Green stated his belief the plan would be "unacceptable to labor." In Detroit, three CIO leaders voiced dissatisfaction with the back-to-work proposal, but announced that General Motors workers would hold a meeting Saturday to decide what course to take.

On Capitol Hill, senators interviewed varied in their reaction from quick approval to the opinion that Mr. Truman's plan did not go far enough.

In the House a move developed for a joint Senate-House committee to recommend national labor legislation. A resolution for such a committee was introduced by Rep. Smith (D-Va).

Smith later introduced a bill to set up, for industry and labor generally, mediation boards modeled after the railway mediation boards.

The legislation also would outlaw sympathy and jurisdictional strikes and require unions to register with a federal agency and make annual financial statements.

Warning that present stoppages are so serious as possibly to "cripple our reconversion program," Mr. Truman asked for passage of the fact-finding bill before Congress's Christmas recess, which is to start December 20, seventeen days away.

Boards Lack Authority

Besides asking the CIO United Automobile Workers to resume work in GM's far-flung plants, Mr. Truman wired United States Steel Corporation and the CIO United Steel Workers to permit no break in production while the fact-finding board assigned to their wage dispute goes to work.

Benjamin F. Fairless, United States Steel president, announced the corporation would give "immediate attention" to Mr. Truman's wire and send a reply "as soon as possible."

The GM president, C. E. Wilson, said in New York he had not yet received the presidential telegram and would need time to study it.

The fact-finding boards set up for steel and automobiles would work exactly like those proposed to Congress, government officials said, but lacking legislative authority, they would depend on voluntary co-operation of the companies and unions.

Expressing his disappointment that industry and union leaders had failed to agree on machinery for peaceful settlement of disputes as the national labor-management conference which closed Friday night,

Youth, 14, Admits Killing Sister, 12

BANGOR, Me., Dec. 3 (AP)—Twelve-year-old Teresa Varney was found stabbed to death today in the kitchen of her home and police said her brother Francis, 14, confessed that he had "struck" her with a knife.

The children's mother, Mrs. Esther Varney, collapsed and was unable to come with her son to municipal court where he pleaded innocent to a charge of murder and was ordered held for hearing December 10.

Police Chief Thomas I. Crowley said Francis, a junior high school pupil, signed a confession stating that he "struck" his sister with a knife. The six-inch blade, the chief said, pierced the girl's heart.

Chief Crowley said Francis "skipped" school today and was in the Varney kitchen when Teresa came home from school at noon with her younger brothers, Richard, 8, and Daniel, 9.

The boy's confession, Chief Crowley said, stated that he hit his sister with a flashlight, knocked her to a couch.

When she got up, the confession added, he reached for a knife, struck her with it and ran from the house.

City Discusses Water Reservoir For North End

A report submitted to the mayor and city council yesterday by City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer indicates that the construction of a water reservoir for North Cumberland is now being considered.

Studies and surveys are being made by the city engineer's office on the project. Homes in North Cumberland would receive greater water pressure in the event a reservoir was built.

It was also pointed out that another result of such a project would be greater protection during fires.

Rizer reported that surveys of right-of-way for a new water transmission line from Lake Gordon to this city are being made. This has been listed as one of the more urgent projects with the Maryland Postwar and Reconstructio Commission. The new water line is needed to provide a greater supply of water to the city for industrial expansion, officials said.

Paving Is Completed

Paving of Holland street has now been completed, Commissioner Hunter B. Helfrich reported. Several short sections of Elmwood and Maplewood Lanes have also been resurfaced, the commissioner said.

Revenue at the Cumberland Municipal Airport for the last week was $30.26. Eight hundred feet of wire fence has been erected at the south end of the No. 1 runway to prevent cars from driving onto the area adjoining the runway which has been seeded with grass.

A total of $37,645.93 was collected in taxes and water rents during November, according to Charles F. Burke, Jr., collector. General taxes were $9,992.59; paving liens, $164.51 and water rents $27,488.33. Samuel E. Griminger, city clerk, reported 141 licenses sold during the month and $1,159.45 collected in Sunday movie taxes.

Other Reports Made

Commissioner of Police and Fire James Orr reported 257 arrests during November and $622 collected in fines. The fire department answered 25 alarms, three of which were false. A total of 12 dwellings, four cars, two stores, four grass fires occurred during the past month and damage was small.

Water consumption last week was 74,430,000 gallons as compared to 75,260,000 gallons during the same period last year. The daily average was 10,633,000 gallons, while last year it was 10,751,000 gallons. The water in Lake Gordon is four inches above the spillway and in Lake Koon two inches below.

Garrett Lumberman Has Heart Attack While Driving Truck

A Garrett county lumberman, Christian Yommer, 63, Jennings, died suddenly late yesterday afternoon when he suffered a heart attack while driving a pick-up truck on the Finzel road, about three miles northwest of Frostburg.

Three occupants of the truck escaped injury when one of the two men riding with him in the front seat pulled the emergency brake of the car and steered the vehicle to the side of the road.

Dr. Linne H. Corson, deputy county medical examiner, said the Garrett county lawyer, who had been suffering from a heart ailment for over a year, was seized with a sudden heart attack and died at 5:20 p. m.

The local medical officer investigated for Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, Garrett county medical examiner, who was reported ill yesterday.

Dr. Corson was told the car was being driven at a moderate rate of speed and that the vehicle was brought under control undamaged at the side of the highway.

Yommer, Dr. Corson said, inched forward and was thrown or fell to the highway as the truck stopped and was lying face down on the road when the other occupants of the car alighted from the vehicle.

Trooper Glen D. Folk, who investigated for state police, added that Edward Wisseman and Irwin Platter, Grantsville, were riding in the front seat with Mr. Yommer and that Wisseman brought the car to a stop after he saw the driver slump over the wheel.

The state trooper added that a man named Younkin, riding in the rear of the truck, was uninjured.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Susie Pritts Yommer; two brothers, John L. and Daniel D. Yommer, both of Jennings; one sister, Mrs. Lee Meyers, also of Jennings, and several nieces and nephews.

Congress Is

Mr. Truman said in his message to Congress:

"Now that the conference has adjourned without any recommendation on the subject, it becomes the duty of the government to act on its own initiative."

The White House plan is patterned after the Railway Labor act, which has kept substantial peace in railroading for twenty years.

It also has striking similarity to the management fact-finding proposal offered unsuccessfully at the conference just closed; but it contains elements to which both sides could not agree voluntarily.

Applicable to Vital Industries

Industry, for instance, objected to laying open its records to fact-finders; the Truman plan would give presidential investigators power to "subpoena individuals and records." Labor resisted limitation of the right to strike; the White House plan would prohibit strikes and lockouts for thirty days.

It would be applied, Mr. Truman said, only to vital and widespread industries, and he named steel, automobiles, aviation, mining, oil, utilities and communications as examples.

If a major dispute did not yield to negotiation or conciliation, and if voluntary arbitration was refused, the secretary of labor would certify the case to the president, who could appoint within five days a fact-finding board of three or more "outstanding citizens." In these five days, stoppages would be prohibited.

The board would make "a thorough investigation of all the facts which it deems relevant in the controversy," reporting within twenty days on its findings and recommendations for settlement.

For twenty-five more days—the twenty-day investigation, and five days thereafter—Mr. Truman said it "should be made unlawful to call a strike or lockout, or to make any change in rates of pay, hours, working conditions or established practices, except by agreement."

"The parties would not be legally bound to accept the findings or follow the recommendations of the fact-finding board, but the general public would know all the facts," the Congress was told.

"The result, I am sure, would be that in most cases, both sides would accept the recommendations, as they have in most of the railway labor disputes."

The Journal-American said the scientist was immediately inducted into the army, "as were more than 100 other persons subsequently believed guilty of passing out information on the atomic bomb. This scientist is now stationed on an obscure South Pacific island where he can be watched."

Lonaconing Police To Be on Alert For Vandalism

By MARIE MERRBACH

LONACONING, Dec. 3 — Local police will be notified to be on the alert against continued acts of vandalism by young boys, it was decided at the regular monthly meeting tonight of Mayor John H. Evans and the town council.

Although no arrests have been made, numerous complaints have been received from residents of the Big Vein hill, Robbins street and Jackson street sections that young boys have been firing guns and throwing rocks through windows, as well as destroying property.

The council decided to send a letter to Miss Mary M. Longridge, principal of Jackson elementary school, asking her to tell boys in the school that they should try to prevent further destruction of property. Residents have reported that most of the cases of property damage have been caused by boys under school age.

It was pointed out that the penalty for firing a gun with in the town limits is $25 fine or thirty days in jail.

Road Repairs Planned

Arrangements were made by the council for preliminary repairs to all town roads before resurfacing is done next spring. A report must be made to the state roads commission by January 1, giving the estimated cost of resurfacing.

Three members of the Goodwill Volunteer Fire Company, George Eichhorn, Wesley Duckworth and William Marshall, appeared before the council to complain that buses of the C. and W. bus company have been blocking Douglas avenue, where the fire house is located making it difficult for firemen to answer calls.

The council voted to notify the bus company to remedy the condition. The bus stop is located at the corner of Douglas avenue and Main street.

Other Business Handled

Isadore Rosenberg complained to the council that a wall at the rear of his property on Jackson street had been damaged by high water from Jackson run. He asked the council to have the wall repaired. The council decided to refer the matter to the street committee.

A letter will be sent to Mrs. J. T. Miller, Washington, D. C., notifying her that a two-story wooden building she owns at the rear of Main street is a fire hazard. The council was told young boys are tearing off boards and building fires under the building.

Leon Bozman, Baltimore, a certified accountant who was scheduled to appear at the meeting to explain a new system of bookkeeping for the town, was not present. The council received no explanation of his absence.

the northern provinces will be quickly pacified and government officials will be able to meet the legitimate people of Azerbaijan."

The note asked Russia to inform the Iranian government as soon as possible what steps could be taken to permit local officials "freedom of action" and to allow the movement of Iranian troops into the northern provinces.

"The ministry of foreign affairs," it said, "considers incorrect the Soviet statement that an increase of Iranian forces in the north would be a matter for suspicion, and this argument should not be used for the Soviets to increase their forces in Iran."

The conciliatory tone of the government's reply, coupled with the replacement of Tehran's mayor, Chulan Hussian Ebterhaj, by Mahmud Nahriman, described as a Soviet sympathizer, was seen by some government members as a definite swing toward appeasement.

They expressed fears that any show of weakness might result in demands which would push the country "slowly but surely under the influence of a foreign power."

Need of Religion And Loyalty Are Stressed by Beall

The need of loyalty of young people to the church and to live up to Christian ideals was stressed by Edward T. Beall, assistant superintendent of personnel of the Celanese Corporation of America, in addressing the young people at the tea given by the Westminster Fellowship of the First Presbyterian church, Sunday.

Speaking on "What Can I Do?" Mr. Beall listed first the need for something to be done; one's responsibility; and need for direction. He reminded the young people that especially in times like today it is their duty to do Christian work and the One Person they can always count on "never letting them down is Jesus." He reminded them that religion must come from within and Christianity, the dynamic force within one, is the prescription for everything.

Urging his young audience not to waste the gifts of God, he illustrated how the artist drawing in the sands at the sea shore has his work washed away by morning.

Mr. Beall reminded the group that it is not easy, or intended, to be easy to be Christians, especially in the distraught world of today; and urged by the young people, "to keep the wire open to religion," and to renew relationships with real Christian characters. The true examination of Christian living he said was to ask oneself if the day was wasted; if one was better at evening than at dawn and what battles had been won. He closed his talk with the question, What can I do? and reminded them that success is never final, failure never total but courage is what counts.

Sixty young people from Emmanuel Episcopal church and the host group attended. Ruth Ann Richards presided at the tea table assisted by Katherine MacManus and Jean Gaither. The quartet composed of Jean Dixon, Ruth Ann Richards, Shirley Fuller and Ann Martin sang the Lord's Prayer accompanied by Mary Ellen Richards. Mrs. Peter G. Ervin assisted Mrs. George T. Woodworth, advisor, and the Rev. David Watson, Mrs. T. M. Andrews and Miss Helen Russell accompanied the visitors.

City Discusses Water Reservoir For North End

A report submitted to the mayor and city council yesterday by City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer indicates that the construction of a water reservoir for North Cumberland is now being considered.

Studies and surveys are being made by the city engineer's office on the project. Homes in North Cumberland would receive greater water pressure in the event a reservoir was built.

It was also pointed out that another result of such a project would be greater protection during fires.

Rizer reported that surveys of right-of-way for a new water transmission line from Lake Gordon to this city are being made. This has been listed as one of the more urgent projects with the Maryland Postwar and Reconstructio Commission. The new water line is needed to provide a greater supply of water to the city for industrial expansion, officials said.

Paving Is Completed

Griminger, city clerk, reported 141 licenses sold during the month and $1,159.45 collected in Sunday movie taxes.

Other Reports Made

Garrett Lumberman Has Heart Attack While Driving Truck

A Garrett county lumberman, Christian Yommer, 63, Jennings, died suddenly late yesterday afternoon when he suffered a heart attack while driving a pick-up truck on the Finzel road, about three miles northwest of Frostburg.

Three occupants of the truck escaped injury when one of the two men riding with him in the front seat pulled the emergency brake of the car and steered the vehicle to the side of the road.

Dr. Linne H. Corson, deputy county medical examiner, said the Garrett county lawyer, who had been suffering from a heart ailment for over a year, was seized with a sudden heart attack and died at 5:20 p. m.

The local medical officer investigated for Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, Garrett county medical examiner, who was reported ill yesterday.

Dr. Corson was told the car was being driven at a moderate rate of speed and that the vehicle was brought under control undamaged at the side of the highway.

Yommer, Dr. Corson said, inched forward and was thrown or fell to the highway as the truck stopped and was lying face down on the road when the other occupants of the car alighted from the vehicle.

Trooper Glen D. Folk, who investigated for state police, added that Edward Wisseman and Irwin Platter, Grantsville, were riding in the front seat with Mr. Yommer and that Wisseman brought the car to a stop after he saw the driver slump over the wheel.

The state trooper added that a man named Younkin, riding in the rear of the truck, was uninjured.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Susie Pritts Yommer; two brothers, John L. and Daniel D. Yommer, both of Jennings; one sister, Mrs. Lee Meyers, also of Jennings, and several nieces and nephews.

Congress Is

Mr. Truman said in his message to Congress:

"Now that the conference has adjourned without any recommendation on the subject, it becomes the duty of the government to act on its own initiative."

The White House plan is patterned after the Railway Labor act, which has kept substantial peace in railroading for twenty years.

It also has striking similarity to the management fact-finding proposal offered unsuccessfully at the conference just closed; but it contains elements to which both sides could not agree voluntarily.

Applicable to Vital Industries

Industry, for instance, objected to laying open its records to fact-finders; the Truman plan would give presidential investigators power to "subpoena individuals and records." Labor resisted limitation of the right to strike; the White House plan would prohibit strikes and lockouts for thirty days.

It would be applied, Mr. Truman said, only to vital and widespread industries, and he named steel, automobiles, aviation, mining, oil, utilities and communications as examples.

If a major dispute did not yield to negotiation or conciliation, and if voluntary arbitration was refused, the secretary of labor would certify the case to the president, who could appoint within five days a fact-finding board of three or more "outstanding citizens." In these five days, stoppages would be prohibited.

The board would make "a thorough investigation of all the facts which it deems relevant in the controversy," reporting within twenty days on its findings and recommendations for settlement.

For twenty-five more days—the twenty-day investigation and five days thereafter—Mr. Truman said it "should be made unlawful to call a strike or lockout, or to make any change in rates of pay, hours, working conditions or established practices, except by agreement."

"The parties would not be legally bound to accept the findings or follow the recommendations of the fact-finding board, but the general public would know all the facts," the Congress was told.

"The result, I am sure, would be that in most cases, both sides would accept the recommendations, as they have in most of the railway labor disputes."

Lonaconing Police To Be on Alert For Vandalism

By MARIE MERRBACH

LONACONING, Dec. 3 — Local police will be notified to be on the alert against continued acts of vandalism by young boys, it was decided at the regular monthly meeting tonight of Mayor John H. Evans and the town council.

Although no arrests have been made, numerous complaints have been received from residents of the Big Vein hill, Robbins street and Jackson street sections that young boys have been firing guns and throwing rocks through windows, as well as destroying property.

The council decided to send a letter to Miss Mary M. Longridge, principal of Jackson elementary school, asking her to tell boys in the school that they should try to prevent further destruction of property. Residents have reported that most of the cases of property damage have been caused by boys under school age.

It was pointed out that the penalty for firing a gun with in the town limits is $25 fine or thirty days in jail.

Road Repairs Planned

Arrangements were made by the council for preliminary repairs to all town roads before resurfacing is done next spring. A report must be made to the state roads commission by January 1, giving the estimated cost of resurfacing.

Three members of the Goodwill Volunteer Fire Company, George Eichhorn, Wesley Duckworth and William Marshall, appeared before the council to complain that buses of the C. and W. bus company have been blocking Douglas avenue, where the fire house is located making it difficult for firemen to answer calls.

The council voted to notify the bus company to remedy the condition. The bus stop is located at the corner of Douglas avenue and Main street.

Other Business Handled

Isadore Rosenberg complained to the council that a wall at the rear of his property on Jackson street had been damaged by high water from Jackson run. He asked the council to have the wall repaired. The council decided to refer the matter to the street committee.

A letter will be sent to Mrs. J. T. Miller, Washington, D. C., notifyner that a two-story wooden building she owns at the rear of Main street is a fire hazard. The council was told young boys are tearing off boards and building fires under the building.

Leon Bozman, Baltimore, a certified accountant who was scheduled to appear at the meeting to explain a new system of bookkeeping for the town, was not present. The council received no explanation of his absence.

the northern provinces will be quickly pacified and government officials will be able to meet the legitimate people of Azerbaijan."

The note asked Russia to inform the Iranian government as soon as possible what steps could be taken to permit local officials "freedom of action" and to allow the movement of Iranian troops into the northern provinces.

"The ministry of foreign affairs," it said, "considers incorrect the Soviet statement that an increase of Iranian forces in the north would be a matter for suspicion, and this argument should not be used for the Soviets to increase their forces in Iran."

The conciliatory tone of the government's reply, coupled with the replacement of Tehran's mayor, Chulan Hussian Ebterhaj, by Mahmud Nahriman, described as a Soviet sympathizer, was seen by some government members as a definite swing toward appeasement.

They expressed fears that any show of weakness might result in demands which would push the country "slowly but surely under the influence of a foreign power."

Need of Religion And Loyalty Are Stressed by Beall

The need of loyalty of young people to the church and to live up to Christian ideals was stressed by Edward T. Beall, assistant superintendent of personnel of the Celanese Corporation of America, in addressing the young people at the tea given by the Westminster Fellowship of the First Presbyterian church, Sunday.

Speaking on "What Can I Do?" Mr. Beall listed first the need for something to be done; one's responsibility; and need for direction He reminded the young people that especially in times like today it is their duty to do Christian work and the One Person they can always count on "never letting them down is Jesus." He reminded them that religion must come from within and Christianity, the dynamic force within one, is the prescription for everything.

Urging his young audience not to waste the gifts of God, he illustrated how the artist drawing in the sands at the sea shore has his work washed away by morning.

Mr. Beall reminded the group that it is not easy, or intended, to be easy to be Christians, especially in the distraught world of today; and urged by the young people, "to keep the wire open to religion," and to renew relationships with real Christian characters. The true examination of Christian living he said was to ask oneself if the day was wasted; if one was better at evening than at dawn and what battles had been won. He closed his talk with the question, What can I do? and reminded them that success is never final, failure never total but courage is what counts.

Sixty young people from Emmanuel Episcopal church and the host group attended. Ruth Ann Richards presided at the tea table assisted by Katherine MacManus and Jean Gaither. The quartet composed of Jean Dixon, Ruth Ann Richards, Shirley Fuller and Ann Martin sang the Lord's Prayer accompanied by Mary Ellen Richards. Mrs. Peter G. Ervin assisted Mrs. George T. Woodworth, advisor, and the Rev. David Watson, Mrs. T. M. Andrews and Miss Helen Russell accompanied the visitors.

Yellow chrysanthemums in a low crystal bowl centered the table which was decorated with tall white tapers in crystal holders. A hand crocheted cloth covered the table.

Java Chiefs Know Books, Revolts But They Look Like Boy Scouts

By RALPH MORTON
AP Newsfeatures

BATAVIA, Java — They look like teen-age boys in white shorts, these new Republican leaders who hold the government of Java in their hands — but actually they all are mature men, almost 100 per cent university trained, with experience in administration under the Dutch.

Several of them have been imprisoned or exiled for long periods by the Dutch for their political activities.

Prime Minister Sutan Sjahrir spent nine of his 36 years in exile. Early in life he joined a youth movement, and at law college in Holland he became a member of a nationalist organization. He was very active in "Pandidikan Nasional Indonesia" on his return to the Indies.

For these activities he was banished to Digoel, New Guinea, and during the tedious years of internment read and wrote extensively. His pamphlets and published works kept alive the nationalist spirit, and Indonesians consider him the best educated and most literary man in the cabinet.

Doctor Muria, the new minister of education, is a Sumatran of noble birth who studied education and law at Amsterdam, winning a doctorate in philosophy. He was for many years a member of "Folksrad" (people's council under the Dutch).

The Netherlands Information Service says he "performed valuable work in the council and consequently was appointed an officer in the Order Oranje Nassau.

Justice Minister Doctor Suwandi was formerly an official in the department of education and religion under the Dutch. He studied in the school for civil administration at Maglang. He was one of the most active members of the oldest nationalist movement.

Doctor Adjidarmo, minister of social affairs, is 38 years old, a physician and a socialist educated in Holland. He resides in East Java.

Thirty-eight year old Amir Sjarifuddin studied at Leyden, Holland, and graduated from law school at Batavia. Two years after graduation he was arrested by the Dutch for a "seditious pamphlet," and spent a year and a half in prison.

For a time he was an officer in the department of economic affairs under H. J. van Mook, now acting governor general, and for his underground anti-Fascist activities he was sentenced to death by the Japanese, but the Japanese surrender saved him.

Professor Sunari Kolopakeng, the minister of finance, previously was a lecturer in economy at the law school in Batavia. He was a member of the old political party, "Partai Nasional Indonesia." He graduated from Leyden and was officer general of the People's Bank of Batavia before becoming economics professor.

The minister of communications, Abdul Karim, is a graduate of Bandoeng University of Engineering. He took no part in political activities under the Dutch, but was one-time registrar at the department of education and religion.

Doctor Darmawan, the minister of welfare, is a graduate of a technical university near Leyden, Holland, and from 1926 to 1943 was an officer in the department of economic affairs.

Doctor Putuehena, minister of public works, was employed for many years in the Dutch government service as an engineer for public works. He is not a political figure.

TRADERS, JUNGLE AND THEORISTS TAKE OVER GREAT BURMA ROAD

DEAD END—Air view of the abandoned Burma road. For years men will debate whether it helped China as much as an increase of supplies over the Himalayas would have done.

By PRESTON GROVER
AP Newsfeatures

BOMBAY—Announcement by U. S. Army Headquarters in New Delhi that the new Burma road is being abandoned reveals that the route is now worthless as a commercial highway and is not likely to be kept open by the British.

To them, the road could only look like an avenue for Chinese infiltration into North Burma and the British have made it clear for decades that they want none of that.

Probably for the next dozen years, Chinese traders with pack horse trains will carry their small wares into northeast India over the winding road while its thousands of miles of pipeline will, in all probability, run into nothingness.

Then, probably, the jungle will move and the road will be swallowed. Like an old Roman road, it will be remembered only because small patches of it continue in use.

Disputed Passage

As early as the autumn of 1942, when the road was mainly Gen. Stilwell's dream, there arose a controversy between the British and the Americans and among high ranking officers in the American army as to whether the road was worthwhile as a military effort.

Gen. Chennault opposed it from the beginning. He declared in private that the effort spent on the road should be used to bring more supplies over the Hump air route for his famous Fourteenth air force in China. The British in their turn tried to convince Stilwell that energy should not be wasted on the road, be put instead behind British efforts to retake Burma.

Stilwell contended that America had the primary duty of restoring communications with China and assisting China in the war against Japan.

Insurance, Anyway

Despite all this friction, the Burma road, says one responsible American officer, "can be defended as an insurance policy. In the event things don't go as smoothly in the Pacific as we hope, then the Burma road will provide us with a new avenue of attack against the Japanese."

(Gen. Marshall, in his recent biennial report, outlined the American position when he said: "China's most critical needs were in trucks and rolling stock, artillery, tanks and other heavy equipment. It was impossible to fly this material over the Himalayas in the essential quantities."

(He also referred to the possible total defeat of China, saying, "It might have made it possible . . . for the [Japanese] government to flee to China and continue the war on a great and rich land mass."

(Marshall also acknowledged the difficulties involved, saying that "sacrifices would be required somewhere, but if made at the wrong place they would cost the lives of Allied soldiers and delay final victory.")

Stillwell organized a spearhead column to drive ahead of the road into north Burma. It included two divisions of Chinese and one light brigade of Americans known as Merrill's Marauders. They demonstrated that the technique of air supply could be perfected so that attacking columns could operate offensively without land supply lines. More important, they showed that Allied soldiers could outshine the Japanese in jungle warfare.

Rugged Path

The road itself was an engineering feat. Through jungle swamps, and jungle mountains, it was driven from northeast India into Burma and thence into China. Parallel to it was a pipeline which carried fuel not only to China, but to the fighting forces in Burma as well.

Observers on both sides of the Hump recognized that Stilwell's road helped sustain China's morale, which was sorely tested by constant defeats.

$25,525 Is Set Aside For Administering New Motor Vehicles Law

BALTIMORE, Dec. 3 (AP) — The board of public works announced today approval of expenditures totaling $25,525 for administration of the new motor vehicles financial responsibility law from January 1, when it becomes effective, to June 30, end of the fiscal year.

Salaries will cost $16,725 during the six-month period and operating expenses $8,000.

W. Lee Elgin, commissioner of motor vehicles, made the budget request, explaining that the larger number of new cars on the road was likely to increase accidents.

Java Chiefs Know Books, Revolts But They Look Like Boy Scouts

By RALPH MORTON

BATAVIA, Java — They look like teen-age boys in white shorts, these new Republican leaders who hold the government of Java in their hands — but actually they all are mature men, almost 100 per cent university trained, with experience in administration under the Dutch.

Several of them have been imprisoned or exiled for long periods by the Dutch for their political activities.

Prime Minister Sutan Sjahrir spent nine of his 36 years in exile. Early in life he joined a youth movement, and at law college in Holland he became a member of a nationalist organization. He was very active in "Pandidikan Nasional Indonesia" on his return to the Indies.

For these activities he was banished to Digoel, New Guinea, and during the tedious years of internment read and wrote extensively. His pamphlets and published works kept alive the nationalist spirit, and Indonesians consider him the best educated and most literary man in the cabinet.

Doctor Muria, the new minister of education, is a Sumatran of noble birth who studied education and law at Amsterdam, winning a doctorate in philosophy. He was for many years a member of "Folksrad" (people's council under the Dutch).

The Netherlands Information Service says he "performed valuable work in the council and consequently was appointed an officer in the Order Oranje Nassau.

Justice Minister Doctor Suwandi was formerly an official in the department of education and religion under the Dutch. He studied in the school for civil administration at Maglang. He was one of the most active members of the oldest nationalist movement.

Doctor Adjidarmo, minister of social affairs, is 38 years old, a physician and a socialist educated in Holland. He resides in East Java.

Thirty-eight year old Amir Sjariffuddin studied at Leyden, Holland, and graduated from law school at Batavia. Two years after graduation he was arrested by the Dutch for a "seditious pamphlet," and spent a year and a half in prison.

For a time he was an officer in the department of economic affairs under H. J. van Mook, now acting governor general, and for his underground anti-Fascist activities he was sentenced to death by the Japanese, but the Japanese surrender saved him.

Professor Sunari Kolopakeng, the minister of finance, previously was a lecturer in economy at the law school in Batavia. He was a member of the old political party, "Partai Nasional Indonesia." He graduated from Leyden and was officer general of the People's Bank of Batavia before becoming economics professor.

The minister of communications, Abdul Karim, is a graduate of Bandoeng University of Engineering. He took no part in political activities under the Dutch, but was one-time registrar at the department of education and religion.

Doctor Darmawan, the minister of welfare, is a graduate of a technical university near Leyden, Holland, and from 1926 to 1943 was an officer in the department of economic affairs.

Doctor Putuehena, minister of public works, was employed for many years in the Dutch government service as an engineer for public works. He is not a political figure.

Sailor, Almost Blind, Is Reunited with Family

CHARLESTON, S. C., Dec. 3 (AP)—Navy Cook Bill Bingham's long wait ended happily today. Almost blinded by an eye infection contracted on Okinawa, he was reunited with his New Zealand wife and two small daughters.

They landed at a local airport, where they were flown in a navy plane from the Pacific coast, last leg of the long journey from New Zealand. Their transportation was arranged when it was feared that Bingham, a patient in the navy hospital here, would go totally blind.

TRADERS, JUNGLE AND THEORISTS TAKE OVER GREAT BURMA ROAD

DEAD END—Air view of the abandoned Burma road. For years men will debate whether it helped China as much as an increase of supplies over the Himalayas would have done.

By PRESTON GROVER
AP Newsfeatures

BOMBAY—Announcement by U. S. Army Headquarters in New Delhi that the new Burma road is being abandoned reveals that the route is now worthless as a commercial highway and is not likely to be kept open by the British.

To them, the road could only look like an avenue for Chinese infiltration into North Burma and the British have made it clear for decades that they want none of that.

Probably for the next dozen years, Chinese traders with pack horse trains will carry their small wares into northeast India over the winding road while its thousands of miles of pipeline will, in all probability, run into nothingness.

Then, probably, the jungle will move and the road will be swallowed. Like an old Roman road, it will be remembered only because small patches of it continue in use.

Disputed Passage

As early as the autumn of 1942 when the road was mainly Gen. Stilwell's dream, there arose a controversy between the British and the Americans and among high ranking officers in the American army as to whether the road was worthwhile as a military effort.

Gen. Chennault opposed it from the beginning. He declared in private that the effort spent on the road should be used to bring more supplies over the Hump air route for his famous Fourteenth air force in China. The British in their turn tried to convince Stilwell that energy should not be wasted on the road, be put instead behind British efforts to retake Burma.

Stilwell contended that America had the primary duty of restoring communications with China and assisting China in the war against Japan.

Insurance, Anyway

Despite all this friction, the Burma road, says one responsible American officer, "can be defended as an insurance policy. In the event things don't go as smoothly in the Pacific as we hope, then the Burma road will provide us with a new avenue of attack against the Japanese."

(Gen. Marshall, in his recent biennial report, outlined the American position when he said: "China's most critical needs were in trucks and rolling stock, artillery, tanks and other heavy equipment. It was impossible to fly this material over the Himalayas in the essential quantities."

(He also referred to the possible total defeat of China, saying, "It might have made it possible . . . for the (Japanese) government to flee to China and continue the war on a great and rich land mass."

(Marshall also acknowledged the difficulties involved, saying that "sacrifices would be required somewhere, but if made at the wrong place they would cost the lives of Allied soldiers and delay final victory.")

Stilwell organized a spearhead column to drive ahead of the road into north Burma. It included two divisions of Chinese and one light brigade of Americans known as Merrill's Marauders. They demonstrated that the technique of air supply could be perfected so that attacking columns could operate offensively without land supply lines. More important, they showed that Allied soldiers could outshine the Japanese in jungle warfare.

Rugged Path

The road itself was an engineering feat. Through jungle swamps, and jungle mountains, it was driven from northeast India into Burma and thence into China. Parallel to it was a pipeline which carried fuel not only to China, but to the fighting forces in Burma as well.

Observers on both sides of the Hump recognized that Stilwell's road helped sustain China's morale, which was sorely tested by constant defeats.

More than 50,000,000 bushels of wheat were ground by the wheat milling industry in April, 1945, to produce an all-time April record of 21,701,725 100-pound sacks of regular wheat flour.

Six out of ten of the 37,000,000 occupied dwelling units in the United States in 1944 had mechanical refrigeration, compared with 15,000,000 or 44 per cent in 1940.

We Should All Mail Early

FEWER AMERICANS had to make an October deadline for Christmas mail this fall than in two previous years, due to the war ending and the return to the States of thousands of servicemen and women. But for the very reason that thousands of servicemen and women will be getting their mail at home this Christmas, the Post Office department reminds all of us of another important mailing deadline—Dec. 10.

We are informed by postal authorities that it is more important than ever that Christmas cards and packages be mailed by that date. Railroads and airlines are carrying the heaviest loads in their history. Thousands of civilian war workers have returned to former addresses, which will necessitate forwarding of mail. The postal service will be staffed with thousands of untrained workers. All these things naturally add up to delay.

And so the post office asks us, besides mailing by Dec. 10, to observe these other simple rules:

Address correctly, and wrap all packages securely.

Don't mail armfuls of Christmas cards and packages the same day. Space out your mailing over a few days so as to avoid congestion and confusion at the post office.

Mail Christmas cards first class, especially in cases where persons to whom they are addressed may have moved. Cards not sent first class will not be forwarded.

Growing Crisis Is Facing Country

ALTHOUGH THE STEEL WORKERS' overwhelming vote in favor of a strike is not likely to result in an immediate walkout, it is additional proof of how grave the labor crisis has become. A quarter million auto workers now are idle and a quarter million more have voted to walk out unless their wage demands are met. More than 600,000 steel workers have now approved a walkout. In comparison, the vote of 100,000 packinghouse workers to strike is a minor contribution to the total, although people will miss their meat if they walk out.

Unless these disputes are settled, it will not be long before the nation will be in a state of complete industrial stalemate.

In the face of this prospect, at a time when the country is urgently in need of a high level of production and employment, it is discouraging to see how little is being done to deal with the crisis. President Truman and Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach appear to have put all their hopes on the Labor-Management conference, which produced nothing beyond a few platitudes.

This has dumped the problem of saving the reconversion program from being wrecked by strikes squarely back on Mr. Truman's lap. If he does not have the courage and the wisdom to meet the sharpest of all tests that his administration has yet had to face, and management and labor fail to settle their differences peaceably, Congress is sure to step into the breach with results that may be unfortunate for both sides.

Civilians May Get More Tires Soon

TO THE MILLIONS OF MOTORISTS still riding on battered, patched and often-recapped tires, the tire production forecast for December brings extremely welcome news. It not only promises an early end to rationing, but it indicates that supply is finally beginning to catch up with demand.

The number of passenger tires allocated for civilian use in December is 2,500,000—precisely the same as for each of the past six months. But, although this figure is unchanged, there has been material improvement in the situation.

In the past few weeks there have been no strikes in tire factories and production of passenger tires has spurted sharply upward. If this increase in output is maintained, production for the last six months of 1945 will total 18,000,000 tires, or 3,000,000 more than have been rationed during that period. These extra tires can be used to boost the working inventory of dealers—an essential step before tires are again easy to obtain.

The tight pinch in tires is at long last well on the way to being eased. In the meantime, so far as December is concerned, tires should be easier to get despite the fact there has been no change in quota. There is usually a seasonal decline in the demand for tires in early winter and this should give local tire boards a chance to fill all immediate needs and reduce the backlog of unfilled applications which are still piled high.

The happy day when there will be enough tires for everybody is almost within sight.

Well Deserved Honor For Gen. O'Brien

ONE OF THE OUTSTANDING ACCOMPLISHMENTS of America in World War II was the rapid acquisition of land required for camps, airfields, bombing ranges and other facilities.

The man who directed this huge series of transactions was Brig. Gen. John J. O'Brien, director of real estate of the War department in the office of chief of engineers.

For his efficient handling of the task the general recently received the Distinguished Service Medal. In presenting the award to him, Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson said:

"He developed policies, procedures and administrative methods which enabled the War department to acquire swiftly and efficiently 38,000,000 acres of land. Under his capable supervision, all the army's real estate requirements for camps, ordnance plants, depots, airfields, bombing ranges, hospitals, fort facilities and innumerable other activities were efficiently filled."

The real estate operation which General O'Brien directed was the largest in the history of the United States Army. It was carried out with little fanfare, but anyone at all familiar with such tasks realizes the vast amount of work involved. It constituted an important aspect of the war effort and was one of the outstanding factors in the preparation of the huge American army for the successful prosecution of the war.

American history will forever record this tremendous undertaking and pay fitting tribute to General O'Brien for his masterful achievement.

Fear of Atomic Bomb Is Real

THE AVERAGE MAN fears the potentialities of the atomic bomb. At the present time he is inclined to be suspicious of machinery that can produce this terribly destructive weapon unless the machinery is in the hands of his own country. So he does not quite follow the complaint of the Association of Oak Ridge scientists consisting of men closely associated with the production of atomic bombs in America.

These scientists say the wrecking by the American Army of Occupation of the Japanese cyclotrons, machinery with which Japan was experimenting with atomic energy, "is as disreputable and ill-considered as would be the burning of Japanese libraries. This action will be condemned by an intelligent people throughout the world." Nuts.

Is smashing Japan's means of making atomic bombs as bad as burning Japan's libraries would be? It seems a far-fetched comparison. Perhaps the scientists are thinking of the advancement for humankind that is alleged to be inherent in atomic energy. The American Army was thinking of the risk if humiliated Japan found out how to make atomic bombs.

It may be that some time in the future men will look back on this era of fear as ridiculous. The scientists seem to subscribe to this happy theory. But right now the fear is very real to most people.

Careful Study Needed On Labor Legislation

AN IMPATIENT CONGRESS is clamoring for legislation to impose stiff controls on labor unions. It can hardly be blamed for feeling strongly that some legislative action should be taken. Unless there are some signs of progress in the settlement of industrial disputes, Congress unquestionably will take a hand.

This would be a good thing if Congress were prepared to accept a comprehensive, well-thought-out program of labor law revision. Unfortunately, the bills now being put forward for action constitute nothing of the sort. They form a hodge-podge of legislation which, if passed, would probably do more harm than good.

This is true especially of the bill which would lay a heavy penalty on any union striking in violation of a no-strike agreement. The net result of this would be that unions would refuse to sign any contracts containing such clauses, and that would hardly be a gain.

It would be far better if Congress would take up a far-reaching labor relations measure, a carefully and conscientiously drafted proposal for improving the machinery of collective bargaining. Hasty and ill-considered legislation could deepen the present mess and widen the split between management and labor.

Instead of issuing a daily ukase about automobile prices, dealer's discounts, etc., Chester Bowles, OPA chief, should issue instructions on how to make the old bus serve another five years. That would really be worthwhile.

Whatever may be thought of Senator Downey's proposal to boost the salaries of congressmen $7,500, it can be said that it is a trifle more moderate than the president's.

The house of the future, we read, will have no attic or cellar. It looks as if we shall have to enlarge the garage to take care of the junk.

The less news there is about Joseph Stalin, the more important news he seems to become.

A SPIRIT COMMUNICATED

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

In one of the delightful essays by Robert Louis Stevenson, I came across this inspiring sentence: "A spirit communicated is a perpetual possession."

Certainly this is so true of Stevenson himself. In all that he wrote, he communicated himself. His spirit is a living thing. Great are the number of books, through which their authors have communicated their undying spirit. I never read the small volume that Marcus Aurelius left to the world without feeling that he, too, lives again. There are other favorites like Michael Fairless's beautiful little book, "The Roadmender." And I could name dozens of others.

It is the best of people that they communicate in such a manner that we feel the impulse of their very lives as a living force. On and on they spread their influence "throughout the widespread veins of endless good."

How many there are whom we welcome as communicants. There are those whose spirits enter us the moment we came in contact with them. An aroma of good will, good fellowship, and sincere intentions, accompany them. And how we welcome them at any time! A spirit communicated is like a cool breeze upon a hot summer day.

There are both books and people to whom we return, again and again—for refreshment, re-conditioning of mind and heart, and for a better adjustment to life. Nothing is so deathless as a spirit communicated.

It is impossible to estimate the power and beauty of the spirit that beloved Ernie Pyle communicated in life, and which so vitally lives now that he is no more among us. Like the beloved fallen officer about whom he so graphically wrote, that unselfish spirit of his is an undying asset to us all.

IT LOOKS LIKE A SLIGHT GAIN

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Profit-Sharing Is Seen as Only Basis For Establishing Permanent Labor Peace

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — New Senator William Knowland, of California, is a staunch Republican. Stuart Symington, surplus war property administrator, is a Democrat. But they seem to have something in common when it comes to helping solve the tangled labor situation.

At any rate, Symington telephoned Senator Knowland the other day to congratulate him on his recently announced plan for labor to share in company profits.

"It's a great idea," the surplus property administrator told the senator from California. "I know. I tried it in St. Louis and it worked."

What Symington put across in St. Louis was an experiment which the Labor-Management conference could well have studied. He had a bad strike in his Emerson Electric plant, led by a union leader who frankly admitted he was a Communist.

Finally, Symington proposed profit-sharing. At first labor was suspicious. So were the stockholders and directors. But Symington persevered. Finally they agreed to a plan whereby profits at the end of the year were divided, partly on the basis of seniority, partly on the basis of skill and importance of work.

First year the profits were only $13,000, but last year they totalled $2,000,000, a lush melon to divide up among employees. The latter are now 100 per cent sold on the idea and so are the stockholders. The workers worked harder, profits are larger, and stockholders got a bigger dividend check.

"Labor got thirty per cent of every nickel we made in 1944," says Symington, "and a system like that is the only basis for permanent labor peace."

Note—Symington's survey of various profit-sharing plans leads him to believe that whenever it has been tried out sincerely it has never failed.

Combat Decorations

One unfortunate fact in this war is that many of the enlisted men and young officers who performed miracles of heroism got no decorations for them. As one young lieutenant described it:

"We were so busy fighting that I never had time to write down citations. It didn't seem important then. But now that we're back home and see all the spinach on other people's bosoms, naturally it makes the combat boys a little envious. We didn't realize that the folks at home considered these things so important."

Probably it's too late for some of the combat men who so richly deserve recognition to get it now. However, there may be some consolation in realizing the manner in which some decorations are wangled. For instance, this writer recalls a telegram in a United State colonel's office in Belgrade, Jugoslavia, from a United States colonel in Bucharest, Roumania, just after the last armistice. It read:

"Am sending one carload sugar for Jugoslav government relief. How about that order of St. Sava you promised me."

Or again many combat veterans recall the spinach on the bosom of Brig. Gen. Julius Holmes. They did not realize at first that his Order of the Phoenix from Greece, his Lebanese Order of Merit, his Commander of the Crown of Jugoslavia, his Southern Cross of Brazil, his Tunisian Nishan Iffticas and numerous other medals were largely received when he was protocol officer for the New York World's Fair.

Hurley's Spinach

Again the delightful and irrepressible Patrick J. Hurley, ex-Ambassador to China, could tell an interesting story of how he got the Silver Star citation which so proudly adorns his chest. It was awarded for "gallantry in action on Nov. 11, 1918, in voluntarily making a reconnaissance under heavy enemy fire."

Nov. 11, 1918, of course, was Armistice day, and everyone knew on that fateful morning the war was coming to an end. Furthermore, what the citation does not say is that Hurley was with the Judge Advocate General's office which operates well behind the lines.

But an hour or so before the Armistice, Hurley came forward in company with Col. E. St. John Greble to watch the historic end of the war. They were about 2,000 yards behind the lines when Lt. Col. Wilbur Rogers of the Seventy-seventh field artillery stopped them and told them the show was over. But they were bent on going forward anyway.

Seven months after the war was over, on June 3, 1919, Hurley mysteriously received a Silver Star citation for "voluntarily making a reconnaissance under heavy enemy fire on Nov. 11, 1918."

Regardless of any other facts in the citation, the trip obviously was "voluntary."

The Sanity Court of the District of Columbia, Case No. 16988, shows that E. St. J. Greble was adjudged insane Jan. 13, 1936, and committed to St. Elizabeth's Asylum. Some State department officials now wisecrack that they wish his former comrade-in-arms was with him instead of now badgering them in the Senate Foreign Relations committee.

Bilbo Loves Persecution

The story is being whispered round that Mississippi's Senator Bilbo actually paid to have his office picketed by a wounded war veteran.

Whether true or not, it is a fact that the Mississippi filibusterer always has thrived on persecution. He was in jail on a contempt of court charge when he first began his campaign for the Senate. It made him a martyr. Since then, Bilbo has always capitalized on the attacks against him. He is now claiming a Northern conspiracy to dictate to the State of Mississippi whom it should send to the Senate. That's why it's rumored that he paid the veteran to picket his office so he could pull the persecution charge again.

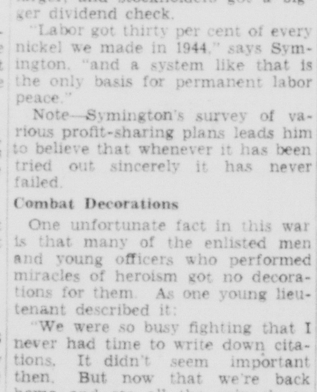

Note—Meanwhile, various anti-Bilbo candidates are on the horizon, latest being Lt. Com. Nelson Levings, only naval officer from Mississippi who served on the battleship USS Mississippi.

Capital Chaff

The Maritime commission is about to disintegrate, just at a time when it's hardest to keep a merchant marine going. Admiral "Jerry" Land, the chairman, is exiting soon, probably to head Pennsylvania-Central Airlines. . . . Admiral Howard Vickery, another able commissioner, is leaving to head the American Bureau of Shipping, which establishes safety standards for ships. Numerous young shipping experts who have worked faithfully are stampeding for private jobs. . . . The National Labor Relations Board, once kicked all over the lot by business and various labor factions, has won unique recognition. The Labor-Management conference could agree on just about one thing—namely, to increase appropriations for NLRB, and to keep it independent of the Labor department. Yet, a few short years ago, NLRB was considered the greatest enemy of business. . . . Billy Rose, the big Broadway producer, is having servant troubles. Reason is Senator Bilbo. A news columnist reported that Rose was on a committee with Senator Bilbo to plan a national stadium in Washington, D. C. Billy never met Bilbo, but New York negroes hate Bilbo so that they won't work for Billy Rose. They think he's a friend of Bilbo's.

Truman's Greatest Weakness Termed Making Decisions

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—President Truman has been in the White House nearly eight months and this is long enough for some impressions to be formed as to the kind of chief executive he will make in the remainder of his term.

The one outstanding weakness revealed thus far is a tendency to reach decisions impetuously or impulsively and to be overawed by the prestige of some of the aggressive advisers who have access to him.

A case in point is the proposed merger of the War and Navy departments. Here is a subject requiring the most thorough investigation and the most careful examination of all the facts. It is a subject vital to the future security of the United States. President Truman is as eager as anyone else to protect the United States against attack but a commander-in-chief who is elected by the people must not reach conclusions hastily or by intuition or instinct. He must reach them by long, arduous study and he must have the courage to postpone decision until he does get all the facts.

Thinks Plan Has Danger

Maybe it is right to adopt the war-navy merger and maybe it isn't. This correspondent is open to correction but happens to think at the moment that the plan is fraught with the greatest danger to America and will do more to ruin our effectiveness in a military and naval way than anything which could be done by legislation. But opinions about this are varied and those who hold the opposite view are entitled to respectful consideration. They could conceivably persuade opponents to come part way toward a compromise.

But what shall be said of the quality of mind of a president of the United States who before he has heard all sides of the story has let it be known informally for several weeks now that the merger plan is going to be indorsed by him. Army officers have been saying their plan "is in the bag." They said it almost from the start of the controversy. Was their confidence based on a conviction that Mr. Truman has made up his mind to favor the army no matter what the facts showed about how the war in the Pacific was conducted?

The American people are entitled to know all the facts. President Truman, as the impartial spokesman of all the people in a matter of national defense, is expected to make a thorough inquiry himself or else to set up a national commission to make such a study. The president cavalierly brushed aside at a recent press conference the latter suggestion when made by his own secretary of the navy. This does not make a good impression because it does not reveal a judicial approach.

Overlooks Main Point

What Mr. Truman meant, to be sure, was that Congress was competent to investigate the matter. He overlooked the main point of the suggestion however which was that since the army controls the House and Senate Military Affairs committee and the navy controls the House and Senate Naval Affairs committee there is no hope for anything but biased reports from each category of committee. The precedent of national commissions composed of outstanding citizens has been used again and again by other presidents and the public has given to such reports the attention which their high-minded declarations usually deserved.

Mr. Truman will be up for re-election in 1948. There will be other opportunties to judge the quality of his mind. But his method of handling the national defense problem thus far has been a disappointment to many persons inside and outside his party. Mr. Truman is a likeable personality. He is sincere and honest but the American people should not vote for their public servants on that basis alone. The most dangerous thing a president can do is to jump at conclusions and to accept recommendations without the most thorough study.

Mr. Truman has accepted as fact the mistakes widely circulated, and ill-founded propaganda that America had unified command in the Pacific. He hasn't taken the trouble to find out why the army air forces balked at bombing the bases from which Japanese suicide planes were killing American boys. He hasn't found out yet why decisions like this had to be referred to the Pentagon building in Washington while American boys were dying on the decks of unprotected American surface vessels tnear the enemy bases. He hasn't got at the facts about the mix-up at Leyte when the ground troops were crying for air cover and couldn't get it. All this is pertinent to a fact-finding study of what did happen.

Must Uncover Facts

If Mr. Truman has closed his mind and is going to recommend the proposed merger without uncovering all the facts of what occurred, it may need another joint committee of Congress like the Pearl Harbor committee to investigate some day the truth of what happened in the war in the Pacific. Maybe the Senate and House Naval Affairs committee themselves will prefer to investigate all this before allowing action on any merger to be taken.

An impulsive decision by Mr. Truman, however, will not help his political future. This is not because the subject is partisan and because it is non-partisan and furnishes independents, irrespective of party, a chance to judge the quality of the president's mind and his approach to other tangled problems in the critical three years that lie ahead for America and the world.

Purposes of Labor, Management Parley Are Not Achieved

By MARK SULLIVAN

As he pounded the gavel for the final adjournment of President Truman's Labor-Management conference, the presiding officer, Judge Walter P. Stacy, spoke a closing sentence: "Gentlemen, we have come to the close of a chapter of the industrial life of America."

The conference had been called for a principal purpose, to set up, by voluntary agreement of labor and management, a mechanism for ending strikes or preventing them, and otherwise handling labor disputes. That purpose was not achieved, nor any other important one.

The only results of the conference were recommendations, dealing with collateral matters, such as no discrimination in labor negotiations because of race, color, creed or sex; and recommendations of generalities in time-worn phrases, most of them already accepted, such as "peaceful procedures", closer understanding, arbitartion as a substitute for strikes. The conference merely affirmed the already accepted, and closed its doors.

Landmark Between Chapters

The Labor-Management conference was no so much a chapter as a landmark between chapters. The earlier chapter began in 1935 with adoption of the National Labor Relations act, the "Wagner act", and other actions and policies of the Roosevelt administration. These added a preceding period, during which labor, in bargaining with employers, had been under a disadvantage not tolerable by modern thought.

But the advantages thus conferred on organized labor were carried to extremes by several conditions, most of them arising out of the spirit of the times and the attitude of the Roosevelt administration.

By the early administration of the Wagner act, as distinguished from its language, the administration being put in the hands of appointees and personnel who included persons with a strong pro-labor bias, even an anti-employer bias. By court decision upholding actions of the early National Labor Relations Board, thus setting precedents and incorporating into our legal system a spirit that was not judicial but partisan on the side of labor. By the political attitude of the Roosevelt administration, which became dependent upon organized labor and more or less openly sought to give labor a political power above that of other groups. By the continuous, and with one unimportant exception successful, opposition to President Roosevelt to measures which Congress otherwise would have passed for amending the Wagner act or in other respects ameliorating labor relations.

That was the early chapter. It brought about the present condition of labor relations, recognized by all as what Judge Stacy envisages it, a dividing point between past and future.

The next chapter? It is not yet certain. A common assumption is that Congress will now write labor legislation, setting up as a formal legal precedure that which the Labor-Management conference failed to accomplish as a voluntary procedure. This may occur. It is possible that Congress may be wise enough, and disinterested enough, even in the face of approaching congressional elections, to write legislation putting labor relations on a workable basis.

Next Chapter Uncertain

Right here is the point which will determine the next chapter, and make it not merely what Judge Stacy described, " a chapter of the industrial life of America", but a chapter in the whole political and social life of the nation.

Either Congress will write legislation which makes labor relations workable, and thus permits the system of free enterprise and private ownership of industry to continue. Or, the present condition will continue, and by continuing grow more extreme, reaching finally a stage already beginning to show itself.

This would be a stage in which the owners and managers of private industry find it too discouraging to go on; in which large industry goes on because it is already committed to so large a stake that it must go on even in despair; but in which new enterprises will not be attempted, and especially in which potential small enterprise will find the difficulties of labor relations so onerous that it will not venture.

Such a paralysis of private industry could have only one ultimate outcome, socialization of industry by an avowedly labor government, such as is now under way in Britain.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

Didn't want that new generation of teeth to forget me, so took my radio show to the Southern California campus recently. Had quite a time deciding whom to take with me. I knew the students would be too old for Sinatra—and too smart for Crosby.

It was home-coming week, you know, when an old grad who couldn't make the table-tennis team comes back and tells them how to run the football team. Southern California stresses the educational side of college life. In fact, I understood the president gets almost half as much as the football coach.

Met some very interesting people. I noticed one young professor and I couldn't figure out why he had snow-white hair, so I asked him. He said "Mr. Hope, did you ever try to teach a halfback advanced calculus?"

Colonna would embarrass me. He was wandering around the campus and busted into a class in evolution. The professor took one look at him, turned to the class and said, "Of course, in some cases progress of the ape has been slow".

Being back midst the ivy-covered walls reminded me of the bright college years of my youth. Ah, I'll never forget the white sheep we used to have grazing on our campus, and the white mule we had hidden in our rooms.

My education was partially paid for by the government, too. Although it was tougher for me than it is for the boys under the new GI Bill of Rights. General Marshall has been a lot more liberal than Grant was.

We Should All Mail Early

FEWER AMERICANS had to make an October deadline for Christmas mail this fall than in two previous years, due to the war ending and the return to the States of thousands of servicemen and women. But for the very reason that thousands of servicemen and women will be getting their mail at home this Christmas, the Post Office department reminds all of us of another important mailing deadline—Dec. 10.

We are informed by postal authorities that it is more important than ever that Christmas cards and packages be mailed by that date. Railroads and airlines are carrying the heaviest loads in their history. Thousands of civilian war workers have returned to former addresses, which will necessitate forwarding of mail. The postal service will be staffed with thousands of untrained workers. All these things naturally add up to delay.

And so the post office asks us, besides mailing by Dec. 10, to observe these other simple rules:

Address correctly, and wrap all packages securely.

Don't mail armfuls of Christmas cards and packages the same day. Space out your mailing over a few days so as to avoid congestion and confusion at the post office.

Mail Christmas cards first class, especially in cases where persons to whom they are addressed may have moved. Cards not sent first class will not be forwarded.

Growing Crisis Is Facing Country

ALTHOUGH THE STEEL WORKERS' overwhelming vote in favor of a strike is not likely to result in an immediate walkout, it is additional proof of how grave the labor crisis has become. A quarter million auto workers now are idle and a quarter million more have voted to walk out unless their wage demands are met. More than 600,000 steel workers have now approved a walkout. In comparison, the vote of 100,000 packinghouse workers to strike is a minor contribution to the total, although people will miss their meat if they walk out.

Unless these disputes are settled, it will not be long before the nation will be in a state of complete industrial stalemate.

In the face of this prospect, at a time when the country is urgently in need of a high level of production and employment, it is discouraging to see how little is being done to deal with the crisis. President Truman and Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach appear to have put all their hopes on the Labor-Management conference, which produced nothing beyond a few platitudes.

This has dumped the problem of saving the reconversion program from being wrecked by strikes squarely back on Mr. Truman's lap. If he does not have the courage and the wisdom to meet the sharpest of all tests that his administration has yet had to face, and management and labor fail to settle their differences peaceably, Congress is sure to step into the breach with results that may be unfortunate for both sides.

Civilians May Get More Tires Soon

TO THE MILLIONS OF MOTORISTS still riding on battered, patched and often-recapped tires, the tire production forecast for December brings extremely welcome news. It not only promises an early end to rationing, but it indicates that supply is finally beginning to catch up with demand.

The number of passenger tires allocated for civilian use in December is 2,500,000—precisely the same as for each of the past six months. But, although this figure is unchanged, there has been material improvement in the situation.

In the past few weeks there have been no strikes in tire factories and production of passenger tires has spurted sharply upward. If this increase in output is maintained, production for the last six months of 1945 will total 18,000,000 tires, or 3,000,000 more than have been rationed during that period. These extra tires can be used to boost the working inventory of dealers—an essential step before tires are again easy to obtain.

The tight pinch in tires is at long last well on the way to being eased. In the meantime, so far as December is concerned, tires should be easier to get despite the fact there has been no change in quota. There is usually a seasonal decline in the demand for tires in early winter and this should give local tire boards a chance to fill all immediate needs and reduce the backlog of unfilled applications which are still piled high.

The happy day when there will be enough tires for everybody is almost within sight.

Well Deserved Honor For Gen. O'Brien

ONE OF THE OUTSTANDING ACCOMPLISHMENTS of America in World War II was the rapid acquisition of land required for camps, airfields, bombing ranges and other facilities.

The man who directed this huge series of transactions was Brig. Gen. John J. O'Brien, director of real estate of the War department in the office of chief of engineers.

For his efficient handling of the task the general recently received the Distinguished Service Medal. In presenting the award to him, Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson said:

"He developed policies, procedures and administrative methods which enabled the War department to acquire swiftly and efficiently 38,000,000 acres of land. Under his capable supervision, all the army's real estate requirements for camps, ordnance plants, depots, airfields, bombing ranges, hospitals, fort facilities and innumerable other activities were efficiently filled."

The real estate operation which General O'Brien directed was the largest in the history of the United States Army. It was carried out with little fanfare, but anyone at all familiar with such tasks realizes the vast amount of work involved. It constituted an important aspect of the war effort and was one of the outstanding factors in the preparation of the huge American army for the successful prosecution of the war.

American history will forever record this tremendous undertaking and pay fitting tribute to General O'Brien for his masterful achievement.

Fear of Atomic Bomb Is Real

THE AVERAGE MAN fears the potentialities of the atomic bomb. At the present time he is inclined to be suspicious of machinery that can produce this terribly destructive weapon unless the machinery is in the hands of his own country. So he does not quite follow the complaint of the Association of Oak Ridge scientists consisting of men closely associated with the production of atomic bombs in America.

These scientists say the wrecking by the American Army of Occupation of the Japanese cyclotrons, machinery with which Japan was experimenting with atomic energy, "is as disreputable and ill-considered as would be the burning of Japanese libraries. This action will be condemned by an intelligent people throughout the world." Nuts.

Is smashing Japan's means of making atomic bombs as bad as burning Japan's libraries would be? It seems a far-fetched comparison. Perhaps the scientists are thinking of the advancement for humankind that is alleged to be inherent in atomic energy. The American Army was thinking of the risk if humiliated Japan found out how to make atomic bombs.

It may be that some time in the future men will look back on this era of fear as ridiculous. The scientists seem to subscribe to this happy theory. But right now the fear is very real to most people.

Careful Study Needed On Labor Legislation

AN IMPATIENT CONGRESS is clamoring for legislation to impose stiff controls on labor unions. It can hardly be blamed for feeling strongly that some legislative action should be taken. Unless there are some signs of progress in the settlement of industrial disputes, Congress unquestionably will take a hand.

This would be a good thing if Congress were prepared to accept a comprehensive, well-thought-out program of labor law revision. Unfortunately, the bills now being put forward for action constitute nothing of the sort. They form a hodge-podge of legislation which, if passed, would probably do more harm than good.

This is true especially of the bill which would lay a heavy penalty on any union striking in violation of a no-strike agreement. The net result of this would be that unions would refuse to sign any contracts containing such clauses, and that would hardly be a gain.

It would be far better if Congress would take up a far-reaching labor relations measure, a carefully and conscientiously drafted proposal for improving the machinery of collective bargaining. Hasty and ill-considered legislation could deepen the present mess and widen the split between management and labor.

Instead of issuing a daily ukase about automobile prices, dealer's discounts, etc., Chester Bowles, OPA chief, should issue instructions on how to make the old bus serve another five years. That would really be worthwhile.

Whatever may be thought of Senator Downey's proposal to boost the salaries of congressmen $7,500, it can be said that it is a trifle more moderate than the president's.

The house of the future, we read, will have no attic or cellar. It looks as if we shall have to enlarge the garage to take care of the junk.

The less news there is about Joseph Stalin, the more important news he seems to become.

A SPIRIT COMMUNICATED

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

In one of the delightful essays by Robert Louis Stevenson, I came across this inspiring sentence: "A spirit communicated is a perpetual possession."

Certainly this is so true of Stevenson himself. In all that he wrote, he communicated himself. His spirit is a living thing. Great are the number of books, through which their authors have communicated their undying spirit. I never read the small volume that Marcus Aurelius left to the world without feeling that he, too, lives again. There are other favorites like Michael Fairless's beautiful little book, "The Roadmender." And I could name dozens of others.

It is the best of people that they communicate in such a manner that we feel the impulse of their very lives as a living force. On and on they spread their influence "throughout the widespread veins of endless good."

How many there are whom we welcome as communicants. There are those whose spirits enter us the moment we came in contact with them. An aroma of good will, good fellowship, and sincere intentions, accompany them. And how we welcome them at any time! A spirit communicated is like a cool breeze upon a hot summer day.

There are both books and people to whom we return, again and again—for refreshment, re-conditioning of mind and heart, and for a better adjustment to life. Nothing is so deathless as a spirit communicated.

It is impossible to estimate the power and beauty of the spirit that beloved Ernie Pyle communicated in life, and which so vitally lives now that he is no more among us. Like the beloved fallen officer about whom he so graphically wrote, that unselfish spirit of his is an undying asset to us all.

IT LOOKS LIKE A SLIGHT GAIN

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Profit-Sharing Is Seen as Only Basis For Establishing Permanent Labor Peace

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — New Senator William Knowland, of California, is a staunch Republican. Stuart Symington, surplus war property administrator, is a Democrat. But they seem to have something in common when it comes to helping solve the tangled labor situation.

At any rate, Symington telephoned Senator Knowland the other day to congratulate him on his recently announced plan for labor to share in company profits.

"It's a great idea," the surplus property administrator told the senator from California. "I know, I tried it in St. Louis and it worked."

What Symington put across in St. Louis was an experiment which the Labor-Management conference could well have studied. He had a bad strike in his Emerson Electric plant, led by a union leader who frankly admitted he was a Communist.

Finally, Symington proposed profit-sharing. At first labor was suspicious. So were the stockholders and directors. But Symington persevered. Finally they agreed to a plan whereby profits at the end of the year were divided, partly on the basis of seniority, partly on the basis of skill and importance of work.

First year the profits were only $13,000, but last year they totalled $2,000,000, a lush melon to divide up among employees. The latter are now 100 per cent sold on the idea and so are the stockholders. The workers worked harder, profits are larger, and stockholders got a bigger dividend check.

"Labor got thirty per cent of every nickel we made in 1944," says Symington, "and a system like that is the only basis for permanent labor peace."

Note—Symington's survey of various profit-sharing plans leads him to believe that whenever it has been tried out sincerely it has never failed.

Combat Decorations

One unfortunate fact in this war is that many of the enlisted men and young officers who performed miracles of heroism got no decorations for them. As one young lieutenant described it:

"We were so busy fighting that I never had time to write down citations. It didn't seem important then. But now that we're back home and see all the spinach on other people's bosoms, naturally it makes the combat boys a little envious. We didn't realize that the folks at home considered these things so important."

Probably it's too late for some of the combat men who so richly deserve recognition to get it now. However, there may be some consolation in realizing the manner in which some decorations are wangled. For instance, this writer recalls a telegram in a United State colonel's office in Belgrade, Jugoslavia, from a United States colonel in Bucharest, Roumania, just after the last armistice. It read:

"Am sending one carload sugar for Jugoslav government relief. How about that order of St. Sava you promised me."

Or again many combat veterans recall the spinach on the bosom of Brig. Gen. Julius Holmes. They did not realize at first that his Order of the Phoenix from Greece, his Lebanese Order of Merit, his Commander of the Crown of Jugoslavia, his Southern Cross of Brazil, his Tunisian Nishan Ifticas and numerous other medals were largely received when he was protocol officer for the New York World's Fair.

Hurley's Spinach

Again the delightful and irrepressible Patrick J. Hurley, ex-Ambassador to China, could tell an interesting story of how he got the Silver Star citation which so proudly adorns his chest. It was awarded for "gallantry in action on Nov. 11, 1918, in voluntarily making a reconnaissance under heavy enemy fire."

Nov. 11, 1918, of course, was Armistice day, and everyone knew on that fateful morning the war was coming to an end. Furthermore, what the citation does not say is that Hurley was with the Judge Advocate General's office which operates well behind the lines.

But an hour or so before the Armistice, Hurley came forward in company with Col. E. St. John Greble to watch the historic end of the war. They were about 2,000 yards behind the lines when Lt. Col. Wilbur Rogers of the Seventy-seventh field artillery stopped them and told them the show was over. But they were bent on going forward anyway.

Seven months after the war was over, on June 3, 1919, Hurley mysteriously received a Silver Star citation for "voluntarily making a reconnaissance under heavy enemy fire on Nov. 11, 1918."

Regardless of any other facts in the citation, the trip obviously was "voluntary."

The Sanity Court of the District of Columbia, Case No. 16988, shows that E. St. J. Greble was adjudged insane Jan. 13, 1936, and committed to St. Elizabeth's Asylum. Some State department officials now wisecrack that they wish his former comrade-in-arms was with him instead of now badgering them in the Senate Foreign Relations committee.

Bilbo Loves Persecution

The story is being whispered round that Mississippi's Senator Bilbo actually paid to have his office picketed by a wounded war veteran.

Whether true or not, it is a fact that the Mississippi filibusterer always has thrived on persecution. He was in jail on a contempt of court charge when he first began his campaign for the Senate. It made him a martyr. Since then, Bilbo has always capitalized on the attacks against him. He is now claiming a Northern conspiracy to dictate to the State of Mississippi whom it should send to the Senate. That's why it's rumored that he paid the veteran to picket his office so he could pull the persecution charge again.

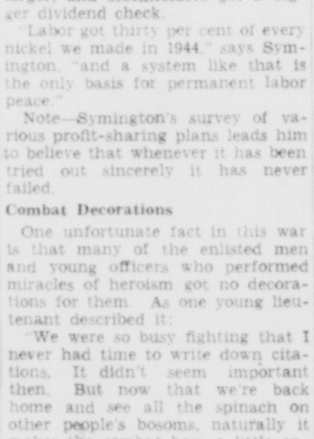

Note—Meanwhile, various anti-Bilbo candidates are on the horizon, latest being Lt. Com. Nelson Levings, only naval officer from Mississippi who served on the battleship USS Mississippi.

Capital Chaff

The Maritime commission is about to disintegrate, just at a time when it's hardest to keep a merchant marine going. Admiral "Jerry" Land, the chairman, is exiting soon, probably to head Pennsylvania-Central Airlines. . . . Admiral Howard Vickery, another able commissioner, is leaving to head the American Bureau of Shipping, which establishes safety standards for ships. Numerous young shipping experts who have worked faithfully are stampeding for private jobs. . . . The National Labor Relations Board, once kicked all over the lot by business and various labor factions, has won unique recognition. The Labor-Management conference could agree on just about one thing—namely, to increase appropriations for NLRB, and to keep it independent of the Labor department. Yet, a few short years ago, NLRB was considered the greatest enemy of business. . . . Billy Rose, the big Broadway producer, is having servant troubles. Reason is Senator Bilbo. A news columnist reported that Rose was on a committee with Senator Bilbo to plan a national stadium in Washington, D. C. Billy never met Bilbo, but New York negroes hate Bilbo so that they won't work for Billy Rose. They think he's a friend of Bilbo's.

Truman's Greatest Weakness Termed Making Decisions

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—President Truman has been in the White House nearly eight months and this is long enough for some impressions to be formed as to the kind of chief executive he will make in the remainder of his term.

The one outstanding weakness revealed thus far is a tendency to reach decisions impetuously or impulsively and to be overawed by the prestige of some of the aggressive advisers who have access to him.

Purposes of Labor, Management Parley Are Not Achieved

By MARK SULLIVAN

As he pounded the gavel for the final adjournment of President Truman's Labor-Management conference, the presiding officer, Judge Walter P. Stacy, spoke a closing sentence: "Gentlemen, we have come to the close of a chapter of the industrial life of America."

The conference had been called for a principal purpose, to set up, by voluntary agreement of labor and management, a mechanism for ending strikes or preventing them, and otherwise handling labor disputes. That purpose was not achieved, nor any other important one.

The conference merely affirmed the already accepted, and closed its doors.

Landmark Between Chapters

The Labor-Management conference was no so much a chapter as a landmark between chapters. The earlier chapter began in 1935 with adoption of the National Labor Relations act, the "Wagner act", and other actions and policies of the Roosevelt administration. These added a preceding period, during which labor, in bargaining with employers, had been under a disadvantage not tolerable by modern thought.

But the advantages thus conferred on organized labor were carried to extremes by several conditions, most of them arising out of the spirit of the times and the attitude of the Roosevelt administration.

By the early administration of the Wagner act, as distinguished from its language, the administration being put in the hands of appointees and personnel who included persons with a strong pro-labor bias, even an anti-employer bias. By court decision upholding actions of the early National Labor Relations Board, thus setting precedents and incorporating into our legal system a spirit that was not judicial but partisan on the side of labor. By the political attitude of the Roosevelt administration, which became dependent upon organized labor and more or less openly sought to give labor a political power above that of other groups. By the continuous, and with one unimportant exception successful, opposition to President Roosevelt to measures which Congress otherwise would have passed for amending the Wagner act or in other respects ameliorating labor relations.

That was the early chapter. It brought about the present condition of labor relations, recognized by all as what Judge Stacy envisages it, a dividing point between past and future.

The next chapter? It is not yet certain. A common assumption is that Congress will now write labor legislation, setting up as a formal legal precedure that which the Labor-Management conference failed to accomplish as a voluntary procedure. This may occur. It is possible that Congress may be wise enough, and disinterested enough, even in the face of approaching congressional elections, to write legislation putting labor relations on a workable basis.

Next Chapter Uncertain

Right here is the point which will determine the next chapter, and make it not merely what Judge Stacy described, "a chapter of the industrial life of America", but a chapter in the whole political and social life of the nation.

Either Congress will write legislation which makes labor relations workable, and thus permits the system of free enterprise and private ownership of industry to continue. Or, the present condition will continue, and by continuing grow more extreme, reaching finally a stage already beginning to show itself.

This would be a stage in which the owners and managers of private industry find it too discouraging to go on; in which large industry goes on because it is already committed to so large a stake that it must go on even in despair; but in which new enterprises will not be attempted, and especially in which potential small enterprise will find the difficulties of labor relations so onerous that it will not venture.

Such a paralysis of private industry could have only one ultimate outcome, socialization of industry by an avowedly labor government, such as is now under way in Britain.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

Didn't want that new generation of teeth to forget me, so took my radio show to the Southern California campus recently. Had quite a time deciding whom to take with me. I knew the students would be too old for Sinatra—and too smart for Crosby.

It was home-coming week, you know, when an old grad who couldn't make the table-tennis team comes back and tells them how to run the football team. Southern California stresses the educational side of college life. In fact, I understood the president gets almost half as much as the football coach.

Met some very interesting people. I noticed one young professor and I couldn't figure out why he had snow-white hair, so I asked him. He said "Mr. Hope, did you ever try to teach a halfback advanced calculus?"

Colonna would embarrass me. He was wandering around the campus and busted into a class in evolution. The professor took one look at him, turned to the class and said, "Of course, in some cases progress of the ape has been slow".

Being back midst the ivy-covered walls reminded me of the bright college years of my youth. Ah, I'll never forget the white sheep we used to have grazing on our campus, and the white mule we had hidden in our rooms.

My education was partially paid for by the government, too. Although it was tougher for me than it is for the boys under the new GI Bill of Rights. General Marshall has been a lot more liberal than Grant was.

Late Buying Spree Raises Market Volume to Best Level since June

By VICTOR EUBANK

NEW YORK, Dec. 3—(AP)—A last-minute burst of buying in motors, steels, aviations and assorted industrials, including selling of rails and some pivotals, put the stock market ticker tape a minute late today and raised volume to the best level since last June.

Selected air transports held the play during the greater part of the proceedings, as optimism over future business spurred purchases and inspired short covering. Issues of automotive concerns and others faced by strikes and wage controversies came to life when President Truman sent his message to Congress recommending settlement procedures for labor disputes.

Transfers of 2,610,000 shares were the largest since June 28 and compared with 1,820,000 Friday.

Chrysler ended up five and three-quarters at 139½. Adding fractions to two or so were General Motors, Hudson Motors, Studebaker, Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet, American Airlines, Sperry, United Aircraft, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, Engineers Public Service, Columbia Gas, du Pont, Loew's Johns-Manville, Paramount, United States Steel and Bethlehem.

Losers were American Telephone, off one and one-fourth; Santa Fe, New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, Western Union "A," Douglas Aircraft, International Harvester and Standard Oil (N.J.).

In the Curb, Pan American Airway warrants jumped one and three-fourths on heavy dealings. Colonial Airlines was up two and three-fourths. Favored were Technicolor, Cities Service, Brown Forman Distillers and Aluminum of America. The aggregate here was 1,420,000 shares versus 1,200,000 in the previous full sesison.

Rails and investment rated corporates were well supported in the bond market, although changes both ways were generally in fractions and the list had a number of minus signs at the close.

Sales of $6,270,000 compared with $8,040,000 last Friday.

Purpose, Program of Youth Federation Are Outlined

Young People of Living Stone Church To Give Program

The purpose of the Christian Youth Federation and the kinds of programs the young people want to have each month were discussed and outlined at the meeting of two representatives of the young peoples group from nine churches, with Mrs. George T. Woodworth, advisor, at Central YMCA, last evening.

The federation is to permit an exchange of thought and ideas by representatives of the respective church groups, participating in the special program once a month at Central YMCA, and to join forces to promote worthy Christian programs, under the joint auspices of the churches and the Y, for the youth of the community.

Victor Athey of the First Baptist church; John Buckel of the Living Stone Church of the Brethren; Donald Fuller of the First Presbyterian church and Arlene Wilt, of Grace Baptist church, led discussions on serving liquor to minors, and how to reach the young people who do not attend church services, by having programs and social activities that interest them.

The group voted to continue the programs already inaugurated of a good speaker and musical numbers, followed by a social. The social program was especially stressed for, the young people pointed out, if it is neglected youth will go elsewhere to find it.

The young people of the Living Stone Church of the Brethren will be in charge of the program from 4 to 5 o'clock, December 9 at the Y. Fifty-five young people from three churches in the federation, have registered to attend Sunday.

Benefit Supper Tonight

A public supper will be held under the sponsorship of the Ladies Auxiliary of Henry Hart Post Veterans of Foreign Wars, tomorrow evening from 5 to 7 o'clock.

Mrs. Grace Stemple, president, announces that the net proceeds will be used entirely to purchase gifts for convelescing servicemen, who are hospitalized and will be unable to get home for Christmas.

Youth Who Loves "Career Girl" Is Advised To Wait

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm very much in love with a girl who has one more year in high school. I graduated last year and am at present in the coast guard where I am studying to be a radio technician. When I finish that course I will be getting enough money so I can marry. She thinks we are too young to marry, and won't even become engaged. She says she wants a cereer. Also, she thinks her parents won't approve of marriage.

We've been going together for two years and have tried going with other boys and girls, but always come back to each other. Do you Why consider becoming engaged about Christmas?

WONDERING.

Why conasider becoming engaged at all? You are both so young. And she still has another year in school. Then she will probably want to go to college, and you will probably want to take advantage of the education benefits under the G. I. Bill of Rights when you are discharged from the service.

Patience is a dreary thing to counsel when one is in the grip of the ecstasy of first love. You'll both look back on this affair as one of the most beautiful experiences of your life. Keep it on a high plane, and try not to think of becoming engaged or married until you are both older.

Would Like New Friends

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl of 16 and we've recently moved to this neighborhood, and am finding it rather hard to make acquaintances. In the old neighborhood I knew everybody and we had good timecs always. I've seen boys and girls passing the house and would like to meet them, but how is this possible?

JUNIOR.

I'm sure this problem will solve itself if you will try to be patient. You didn't seem to have trouble before you moved to this neighborhood, and undoubtedly are an attractive girl. Perhaps the boys and girls there are just as anxious to know you.

Why not attend social activities in your community clubs, or in the church nearest your home? And now that school has started, you'll probably find boys and girls in your classes eager to meet you. Don't become impatient, and before you know it you will be as popular as you were in the old neighborhood.

Cross-Questioning

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've always been a very truthful person and despise lying. Since I've been married I've had to lie just to save a scene, as my husband seems to think he must know evetything I do every minute and what I do with every penny he gives me.

I care nothing at all about affairs he may have, but to get back at him I ask about the girls who call him up and those he lunches with at noon. And naturally he lies out of them too.

Why do we do this to each other? We might really have a happy time if we stopped all this cross-questioning.

BAFFLED.

Fear is the real reason of all this cross-questioning—You're afraid to say to your husband: "I did get myself a new hat today, what of it?" And he's probably afraid to tell you about going to lunch with one of the girls in his office, which may be philandering of the foolish variety and insufficient to make any wife jealous. The greatest blessing to each one of you would be to be perfectly frank and honest. Don't lie to each other about such unimportant things.

Give 'Em Gifts For Home

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures Writer

There are some new things and lots of the old standbys in the stores for early shoppers. And when you are shopping for your Christmas gifts don't forget there are many attractive presents that can be selected for use in the home. Besides making impressive gifts, many of these can be very useful.

Of course, if you buy a bird bath for your apartment-dwelling friends or a table broiler for your country cousins you'll probbe way off the beam.

You don't have to spend much to give a practical gift for the home. a set of ashtrays is always welcome. Besides the solid bronze ones that are back again this year, there are some of aluminum. There are also some that can be used as coasters. These are chemically treated and made of asbestos. Guaranteed to absorb moisture, you can place your cocktail on them or dunk your cigarette. Then all you have to do is dunk them in soap and water.

Aluminum coasters are back on the market and most of these are guaranteed to retain balance and not wobble.

Three-tier candlesticks with one rim for flowers and an upper tier for mints or cigarettes can prove an ideal addition to the party table. Candles that have flowered cuffs are also new.

There is a new streamlined version of an old-fashioned album. It is a picture frame album in hand-tooled leather to stand on the piano in the living room or on the desk in dad's office. There are also picture frames in sterling silver and brass.

Pottery can be obtained in beautiful colors—some of it is hand-painted. There are particularly pretty sets for luncheon and pretty sets for lunchean and kitchen use.

Irish linen will send any recipient into ecstacy. You should find more of it available now than at any time during the war. There are runners, place mats, sheets, damask table cloths, handkerchiefs and towels. One of the nicest and most practical of Irish linen gifts are the gayly designed dish towels. These are as much fun for mom and granny to have as for the bride because every woman enjoys a gift that will help brighten her kitchen.

Plastic furniture in chairs, tables and numerous other household pieces are still a little on the expensive side. Swedish glass is hard to find though there is more of it. Most of it is not expected to reach the market until 1946.

If you are shopping for a man's den give him something sensible like some bird prints . . . leather or metal furniture that he can put his feet on if he likes . . . lamp tables that just won't tip no matter how much punishment they take. . .animal book ends of wood or glass or a desk set.

Your teen-ager would be thrilled with a portable phonograph . . . new records . . . bulletin board to hold pictures . . . or some games.

U. S. railroads in the first 40 weeks of 1945 transported more car loads of grain and grain products than ever before on record for any corresponding period.

(Registered U. S. Patent Office)

You are not "a man" or "a woman." You are a man AND a woman.

Your body may be male or female, but your mind is a MINGLING OF BOTH SEXES.

You were not born of one sex. You were born of the mingling of two sexes. For the first period of your prenatal life, you had no sex. It was impossible to tell whether you were a boy or girl. Then gradually you developed certain sex distinctions. But your body was still a mixture of the father and mother patterns.

When you were born they said you had your mother's eyes and your father's forehead. If they could have looked deeper they would have seen that your spirit was equally divided between the male and female. You were mentally and emotionally man-woman.

That is why some little girls hate dolls and play with footballs, though they be be "feminine" in every other respect. That is why some little boys hate to dig pirate caves and love to cuddle Teddy Bears, to the consternation of their bewildered parents. And you are quite as bewildered by these inconsistencies in yourself, now that you are grown.

Sometimes you feel as a man is supposed to feel. Sometimes you feel as a woman is supposed to feel. I say "supposed" to feel because we have attached our own notions to human feelings. We have decided that men feel and think in certain ways and that women feel and think in certain ways. As a matter of fact, they do nothing of the sort. There is no such thing as "a man mind" or a "woman mind"—"a man nature" or "a woman nature." There are only man-and-woman minds, and man-and-woman natures.

Women are supposed to be timid. But often men are more timid than women. All men have secret streaks of cowardice. All women have amazing streaks of courage. Men are supposed to be fiery and women are supposed to be cool. That is another laugh! For women are frequently far more ardent than men. And many a gentleman has remained a bachelor rather than reveal his tepid temperment to a too enthusiastic lady.

Life would be much simpler and happier if we would admit these facts and permit ourselves and others to act accordingly. But we won't—so great is our fear of the fierce taboos which have arisen from our ignorance.

We expect men "to act as men" and women "to act as women" and if they date to act otherwise we despise and prosecute them and make them feel abnormal, even monstrous. We say a woman that ploughs her own fields is "a nut" — even though she may have the muscle of ten men and a natural talent for agriculture.

And as for a man who likes to make lamp shares. . .Yet there is no reason why ploughing should be exclusively a male craft or shade making an exclusively female occupation. But of course, few of us have the courage to assert this fact and brave ridicule. So we end by living lies—wasting half the power within us and losing the full beauty of life.

Be yourself. Be both yourselves. Be a man when you feel like a man and a woman when you feel like a woman. Cast aside the stupid sex distinctions which we have made between male and female, and live all sides of your nature. And let the other fellow do likewise!

Frostburg Lions Club To Sponsor Children's Clinic

Examinations Are Scheduled for December 13 at City Health Center

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG, Dec. 3—The first clinic to be held at the city health center, under the sponsorship of the Frostburg Lions club, is scheduled for Thursday, December 13, beginning at 1 p. m. under the direction of Mrs. Margaret Hanson, county health nurse. Dr. Winter R. Frantz, assistant county health officer, will be the physician in charge.

The clinic will be for children from birth to pre-school age. Parents are being urged to bring the children for an examination. There will be no charge for the service.

The city health center has recently undergone extensive remodeling. The lighting and ventilation have been modernized and the Lions club has arranged to procure a modern hospital bed to replace the bed now a part of the equipment of the health center.

Members of the Lions club, headed by Wesley Sleeman, chairman of the health and welfare committee, will co-operate with the county health officers in having parents support the clinic in every possible manner. It is planned to hold the clinic at regular intervals and to offer free service to all who may be interested.

Vocal selections were presented by the Men's chorus of First Methodist church and Mrs. Elizabeth Hunter Reinhart, who sang the "Twenty-third Psalm" and "One Sweetly Solemn Thought." Mrs. Lillian Speir Stewart and Miss Mabel Myers played the piano accompaniments.

The invocation was offered by the Rev. Justus H. Liesman, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, and the benediction was given by the Rev. W. D. Reese, pastor of the Welsh Memorial church.

Ever Try Making Cough Syrup in Your Kitchen?

Gives Quick Relief. And It's So Easy! No Cooking.

If you've never tried mixing your own cough medicine, you've missed a lot. It's no trouble—needs no cooking—and gives you about four times as much cough syrup for your money. You'll say it beats anything you ever tried for coughs due to colds. And here's how it's done:—

Make a plain syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until it is dissolved. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup. Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from your druggist. Put this into a pint bottle and fill up with your syrup. This makes a pint—a family supply. Tastes fine and never spoils. Children love it.

And as for results, you've never seen anything better. It goes right to work on the cough, loosening the phlegm, soothing the irritation, and helping clear the air passages. You will like it for its results, and not merely for the money it saves.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Ever Try Making Cough Syrup in Your Kitchen?

Gives Quick Relief. And It's So Easy! No Cooking.

If you've never tried mixing your own cough medicine, you've missed a lot. It's no trouble—needs no cooking—and gives you about four times as much cough syrup for your money. You'll say it beats anything you ever tried for coughs due to colds. And here's how it's done:—

Make a plain syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until it is dissolved. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup. Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from your druggist. Put this into a pint bottle and fill up with your syrup. This makes a pint—a family supply. Tastes fine and never spoils. Children love it.

And as for results, you've never seen anything better. It goes right to work on the cough, loosening the phlegm, soothing the irritation, and helping clear the air passages. You will like it for its results, and not merely for the money it saves.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

500 Witness Legion's Eleven Bout Program

Fuller Flattens Foster; Starkey Wins Slugfest

Esposito, Nazelrod, Leslie Win Decisions in Other Thrillers

A one-round knockout and four three-round thrillers highlighted the second amateur boxing show of the season staged by Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, Robert V. "Sparky" Chisholm, matchmaker, before a gathering of approximately 500 persons last night in the state armory.

Eleven bouts comprised the program, which got under way at 8 p. m. and lasted two and a half hours. Gilbert Becker and James E. Kelley, Jr., referred all of the matches—Becker working the first four first and Kaley the last seven.

Eight matches went the limit of three rounds, two ended in knockouts, and one was decided via the technical knockout route.

Fuller Scores Knockout

Bobby Fuller, Cumberland flyweight, gave the crowd its biggest thrill in the fourth bout on the card when he knocked out Frank Foster, Tiger Athletic Club 114-pounder, after one minute and twelve seconds of milling in the opening round. Fuller flew out of his corner at the opening bell and Foster went down for no count following a series of punches to the head. Quick as a cat, Fuller let loose with a second burst of speed and the lights went out for Foster when he ran into a hard left to the jaw. Referee Becker counted ten over the fallen boxer.

Fireworks in the quartet of three-round punchfests were provided by Johnny Esposito and Jimmy Brown, Bob Nazelrod and Jackie Klosterman, Mike Leslie and Walter Basilio and last but not least Ronald "Skeets" Starkey and Bill Buser.

The Esposito-Brown brawl followed Fuller's knockout of Foster and was packed with action from start to finish. Esposito, who is better known locally as a football player, having starred with LaSalle high school, survived a knockdown in the second round, to gain a 2 to 1 decision over his Negro opponent at the finish of a gruelling match. The decision proved an unpopular one with the fans and came in for plenty of booing. In fact it was the only decision that got the "bird" during the evening. Referee Kelley cast his vote for Brown while the two judges picked Esposito. Brown seemed to have the edge in the first round, took the second by a wide margin, the bell saving his opponent on his trip to the canvas, but was held on even terms by Esposito in the last stanza.

Another slugfest that had the spectators on their toes was the three round brawl between Jack Klosterman, the 139-pound crowd pleaser from the Cumberland Police Boys' Club, and Bob Nazelrod, a hard-hitting welterweight. It was bang, bang, bang all the way in this affair with Nazelrod getting the nod at the finish because he carried more guns than his foe. The boys slugged it out toe-to-toe throughout with Nazelrod earning the edge in the first two rounds while Klosterman game to the core, came back in the final heat to battle Bob on even terms. It was a good fight, a popular decision and won the plaudits of the cash customers.

Starkey Wins Hard Fight

The knockdown dragout affair of the evening came in bout No. 9 in which two courageous warriors—Bill Buser and Ronald "Skeets" Starkey, the pride of Wiley Ford—hit each other with everything but the water bucket, with the latter getting the "duke" at the conclusion of the setto. Outweighed nine pounds, Starkey engaged Buser in the "battle of knockdowns" which saw both boys bounce off the carpet four times. "Skeets" made one trip in the first round and three in the second. Then the tide turned and Buser hit resin once in the second and three times in the third. It was a humdinger of a fight and the decision for Starkey was unanimous.

Mike Leslie, junior lightweight, who made a favorable impression on the crowd with his clever boxing, grabbed a 2-1 decision over Walter "Meatball" Basilio, PBC lightweight, in another interesting bout that was crowded with action all the way. This was the best boxing match on the card. Leslie appeared to be the more experienced of the pair but Basilio never quit trying and made a good fight of it throughout.

House won over Melvin Washington, local 123-pound Negro, when the latter failed to come out for the third and final round. Washington was floored five times in this match and the bell saved him in the second canto. House was a greatly improved puncher over his initial appearance in the Legion's October tournament.

Ray Cleggett, 151 pound Negro, who scored a knockout victory in the October show, found out how it felt to be knocked out when he fell before the fists of Portmess in 1:10 of second round. Cleggett started out like he was going to make short work of the redhead but the latter, cool as a cucumber, let the Negro shoot his bolt then he waded in for the kill.

Next Show on January 7

CAMPFIRE CORNER

By Jack Welch

Bringing Home the Venison

THERE ARE persons professing a distaste for ducks, pheasants, grouse, rabbits and other furred and feathered creatures because of their "gamey" flavor who never have tasted properly cleaned and prepared game. Likewise there are those who "can't stomach venison" because they've never essayed anything but semi-decayed deer meat. In the north, during the cold weather, it is not much of a trick to get venison out of the woods to your butcher in good condition; in warm weather or in southern states your difficulties are multiplied.

Jack Welch

In the first place, make certain your deer is dead before you begin to dress him. There have been occasions when a wounded buck has attacked his pursuer, and a buck's knife-like forefeet can inflict serious wounds. Sometimes a deer apparently dead as a doornail will leap to his feet and bound away before the astonished hunter can draw a bead on him.

If possible, immediately after killing your venison, pull the animal's head downward on a slope. This will keep the hide bloodless and help drain the carcass as well. If you hang up your trophy suspend it head upward rather than by the hind legs. There's no need of cutting the animal's throat or of "sticking" it if it's shot with a highpowered expanding bullet and dressed at once.

The bullet and dressing, between them, do all the bleeding necessary, but if you want to be extra particular stick a main artery, before hanging up. Unless a deer is thoroughly bled the flavor of the meat will be impaired.

How to Do It

Now at the point where the breastbone ends, cut into the skin and muscles, and draw the blade downward nearly to the base of the tail, cutting around both sides of the genitals and a circle around the anus. Be careful, however, not to cut into the intestines. Pull out the large intestine, anus and genitals with it. Your hand ax comes in handy now. With it, split the pelvis bones, thus making removal of intestines easy. Remove the breast organs by reaching up into the cavity and pulling them out. Cut and remove windpipe. If you proceed in this way rather than by slitting the breastbone up the middle you'll avoid getting blood all over your deer and exposing much of the meat to dirt.

Wipe out the entire body cavity with cloth or paper, if you have any, or with moss and leaves. If water is available you may wash out the cavity, but dry it thoroughly after you have finished the cleansing job. Now you can tote or drag your deer to camp.

If the weather is cold you can transport the animal home on the fender of your auto, being sure that it doesn't rest against the hood, but unless you want it to gather a lot of dirt on the way protect it with canvas or some other covering.

If the weather is warm it may be necessary to skin the deer, quarter it, rub it with salt and wrap it in heavy cloth or blankets before starting your homeward trip. Don't pack the pieces closely together in your car's luggage compartment. Leave the door partly open for ventilation.

Five Suspended Horse Trainers To Get Hearings

First of Alleged Doping Cases Will Be Heard on December 10

The first hearing will start at 10 a. m. for C. Sutphin, trainer of S. W. Labrot, Jr.'s Shako, sixth race winner November 19.

December 11, 10 a. m., E. A. Christwas, trainer of W. L. Brann's New Challenge, fourth race winner November 19.

Dec. 11, 3 p. m., R. F. Curran, trainer of E. D. Talbert's One Only ran fifth in seventh race November 17.

The commission has not named the norcotics, but said the information would be given at the hearings.

J. J. Bauer, trainer of Norwalk stable, was barred for life by the commission several weeks ago. The commission charged that benzedrine was found in the saliva of Armistice Day, a winner at the Laurel fall meeting.

A hearing was held last week for J. D. Byers, trainer of Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's steeplechase winner, Cosey. Chemists reported benzedrine in the test taken after the horse won at Pimlico, but the commission has reserved its decision pending possible introduction of new evidencef rom Beyers's counsel.

International League Sets Opening Games

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 3 (AP)—The International Baseball League today approved an amendment to baseball laws whereby no legislation could be ruled "detrimental to baseball" by the game's commissioner and set either April 17 or 18 as the opening for its 1946 season.

Holding its annual meeting in advance of the minor league conclave, the league approved a campaign of 154 games, the start of which will be decided after the major leagues' set their opening date.

As usual, the international will commence one day after the majors.

The season, which closes September 8, will have as its opening four games: Buffalo at Newark, Montreal at Jersey City, Toronto at Syracuse, and Rochester at Baltimore. The second half of the "home" openers will start May 1 or 2, reversing the schedule.

Col. "Biff" Jones Quits Nebraska

Resigns when Board Fails To Offer Him Position as Head Coach

LINCOLN, Nebr., Dec. 3. (AP)—Col. Lawrence M. (Biff) Jones has resigned from the University of Nebraska coaching staff after being asked to return only as athletic director instead of the dual post — head coach and athletic director—which he held before the war.

This was disclosed today by release of an exchange of letters between the athletic board and Col. Jones, who is now on war time leave as athletic director at West Point.

A November 13 letter from the board to the "Biffer" said in part: "Both boards (athletic board and board of regents) wish you to know that they would prefer to have you return as director of intercollegiate athletics only, and that the board of intercollegiate athletics proceed at once to engage a head coach who could report for duty not later than February 1."

Col. Jones, under whose guidance the Cornhuskers went to the Rose Bowl in 1940, replied in a letter dated November 28:

"Please consider this as my resignation, effective this date, as head football coach and director of athletics at the University of Nebraska."

Army Gets Lambert Memorial Trophy

NEW YORK, Dec. 3—(AP)—The honors began pouring in on Army's invincible football cadets as a jury of eastern sports writers and broadcasters today unanimously voted the West Point eleven the August V. Lambert Memorial trophy, symbolic of Eastern collegiate football supremacy.

Following the announcement that Felix (Doc) Blanchard, piledriving fullback of the unbeaten and untied Cadets, had been awarded the Heisman memorial trophy as the outstanding gridiron performer of 1945, the Lambert committee disclosed that the Cadets had been selected for the Eastern award by all seventy-eight participants in its poll. It was the second straight year that army has walked off with the trophy.

Navy finished second and Pennsylvania third without any other team being named in the balloting.

Miami Wins Bid To Orange Bowl Football Game

Hurricanes Will Battle Holy Cross Crusaders New Year's Day

By ROGER GREENE

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 3 (AP)—A scrappy University of Miami eleven that jumped from past mediocrity into the limelight as the "cinderella team" of the south, was chosen unanimously today to play against the Holy Cross Crusaders in the Orange Bowl game January 1.

Immediately a wild celebration erupted in downtown Miami and on the university campus in nearby Coral Gables as word spread that the hometowners had won the bid over the No. 2 choice, Louisiana State University's Bayou Tigers.

It will be Miami's first appearance in the Orange Bowl since the inaugural in 1935, when the Hurricanes lost to Bucknell, 26-0. For Holy Cross, it will be the first bowl game of any kind.

Once beaten in a 27-21 thriller by Georgia and once tied, 13-13, by South Carolina, the Hurricanes started off the season with mostly inexperienced freshmen, but they came through a hard schedule with eight wins and 198 points to their opponents' 93.

500 Witness Legion's Eleven Bout Program

Esposito, Nazelrod, Leslie Win Decisions in Other Thrillers

A one-round knockout and four three-round thrillers highlighted the second amateur boxing show of the season staged by Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, Robert V. "Sparky" Chisholm, matchmaker, before a gathering of approximately 500 persons last night in the state armory.

Eleven bouts comprised the program, which got under way at 8 p. m. and lasted two and a half hours. Gilbert Becker and James E. Kelley, Jr., referred all of the matches—Becker working the first four first and Kaley the last seven.

Eight matches went the limit of three rounds, two ended in knockouts, and one was decided via the technical knockout route.

Fuller Scores Knockout

Bobby Fuller, Cumberland flyweight, gave the crowd its biggest thrill in the fourth bout on the card when he knocked out Frank Foster, Tiger Athletic Club 114-pounder, after one minute and twelve seconds of milling in the opening round. Fuller flew out of his corner at the opening bell and Foster went down for no count following a series of punches to the head. Quick as a cat, Fuller let loose with a second burst of speed and the lights went out for Foster when he ran into a hard left to the jaw. Referee Becker counted ten over the fallen boxer.

Fireworks in the quartet of three-round punchfests were provided by Johnny Esposito and Jimmy Brown, Bob Nazelrod and Jackie Klosterman, Mike Leslie and Walter Basilio and last but not least Ronald "Skeets" Starkey and Bill Buser.

The Esposito-Brown brawl followed Fuller's knockout of Foster and was packed with action from start to finish. Esposito, who is better known locally as a football player, having starred with LaSalle high school, survived a knockdown in the second round, to gain a 2 to 1 decision over his Negro opponent at the finish of a gruelling match. The decision proved an unpopular one with the fans and came in for plenty of booing. In fact it was the only decision that got the "bird" during the evening. Referee Kelley cast his vote for Brown while the two judges picked Esposito. Brown seemed to have the edge in the first round, took the second by a wide margin, the bell saving his opponent on his trip to the canvas, but was held to even terms by Esposito in the last stanza.

One of Brown's seconds jumped into the ring and yelled "We wuz robbed" but the decision stood.

Another slugfest that had the spectators on their toes was the three round brawl between Jack Klosterman, the 139-pound crowd pleaser from the Cumberland Police Boys' Club, and Bob Nazelrod, a hard-hitting welterweight. It was bang, bang, bang all the way in this affair with Nazelrod getting the nod at the finish because he carried more guns than his foe. The boys slugged it out toe-to-toe throughout with Nazelrod earning the edge in the first two rounds while Klosterman came to the core, came back in the final heat to battle Bob on even terms. It was a good fight, a popular decision and won the plaudits of the cash customers.

Starkey Wins Hard Fight

The knockdown dragout affair of the evening came in bout No. 9 in which two courageous warriors—Bill Buser and Ronald "Skeets" Starkey, the pride of Wiley Ford—hit each other with everything but the water bucket, with the latter getting the "duke" at the conclusion of the setto. Outweighed nine pounds, Starkey engaged Buser in the "battle of knockdowns" which saw both boys bounce off the carpet four times. "Skeets" made one trip in the first round and three in the second. Then the tide turned and Buser hit resin once in the second and three times in the third. It was a humdinger of a fight and the decision for Starkey was unanimous.

Mike Leslie, junior lightweight, who made a favorable impression on the crowd with his clever boxing, grabbed a 2-1 decision over Walter "Meatball" Basilio, PBC lightweight, in another interesting bout that was crowded with action all the way. This was the best boxing match on the card. Leslie appeared to be the more experienced of the pair but Basilio never quit trying and made a good fight of it throughout.

House won over Melvin Washington, local 123-pound Negro, when the latter failed to come out for the third and final round. Washington was floored five times in this match and the bell saved him in the second canto. House was a greatly improved puncher over his initial appearance in the Legion's October tournament.

Ray Cleggett, 151 pound Negro, who scored a knockout victory in the October show, found out how it felt to be knocked out when he fell before the fists of Portmess in 1:10 of the second round. Cleggett started out like he was going to make short work of the redhead but the latter, cool as a cucumber, let the Negro shoot his bolt then he waded in for the kill.

Ross Prysock, sports editor of the Cumberland Times, and First Sgt. John Doud, of the Maryland State Police, were the judges; Bobby Cavanaugh, timer, and Sammy Cozad, announcer.

Next Show on January 7

Fight Results

Earl Smith, 99, Cumberland, won decision over Roy Richardson, 99, Frostburg.

John House, 119, Cresaptown, won on technical knockout over Melvin Washington, 123, Negro, Cumberland, when latter quit in third round.

Chief Judge William A. Huster yesterday awarded a divorce to William J. Dean, 22, 213 Saratoga street, a former soldier, from Mrs. Ruth F. Sweitzer Dean.

Dean, a Celanese employe, said they were married December 17, 1941, in Grantsville, and that he enlisted in the army ten days later. Dean said his wife had a child by another man while he was overseas. He was represented by Edward J. Ryan.

Mrs. Martha V. Shearer, Cumberland, has been granted an absolute divorce from Frederick C. Shearer. The couple were married in April, 1939, and separated May 1, 1944. Desertion was charged. The wife was granted the custody of their three children and the husband was ordered to pay $18 per week for their support. Julius E. Schindler was attorney for the wife.

Mrs. Mae D. Wilhelm, Cumberland, has been granted an absolute divorce from her husband, Thomas B. Wilhelm. Desertion was charged. Mrs. Wilhelm was given the right to resume her maiden name of Mae Dicken. She was represented by Schindler.

Russell Poland, represented by Edward J. Ryan, filed for an absolute divorce from Mary Poland. They were married in Oakland in 1942 and have one child.

In another case docketed by Ryan, Robert L. Brown has asked for an absolute decree from Virginia Brown and the custody of two children, ages two and one. They were married in Frostburg in 1942 and separated in 1945.

CAMPFIRE CORNER

Bringing Home the Venison

THERE ARE persons professing a distaste for ducks, pheasants, grouse, rabbits and other furred and feathered creatures because of their "gamey" flavor who never have tasted properly cleaned and prepared game. Likewise there are those who "can't stomach venison" because they've never essayed anything but semi-decayed deer meat. In the north, during the cold weather, it is not much of a trick to get venison out of the woods to your butcher in good condition; in warm weather or in southern states your difficulties are multiplied.

Jack Welch

In the first place, make certain your deer is dead before you begin to dress him. There have been occasions when a wounded buck has attacked his pursuer, and a buck's knife-like forefeet can inflict serious wounds. Sometimes a deer apparently dead as a doornail will leap to his feet and bound away before the astonished hunter can draw a bead on him.

If possible, immediately after killing your venison, pull the animal's head downward on a slope. This will keep the hide bloodless and help drain the carcass as well. If you hang up your trophy suspend it head upward rather than by the hind legs. There's no need of cutting the animal's throat or of "sticking" it if it's shot with a highpowered expanding bullet and dressed at once.

The bullet and dressing, between them, do all the bleeding necessary, but if you want to be extra particular stick a main artery, before hanging up. Unless a deer is thoroughly bled the flavor of the meat will be impaired.

How to Do It

Now at the point where the breastbone ends, cut into the skin and muscles, and draw the blade downward nearly to the base of the tail, cutting around both sides of the genitals and a circle around the anus. Be careful, however, not to cut into the intestines. Pull out the large intestine, anus and genitals with it. Your hand ax comes in handy now. With it, split the pelvis bones, thus making removal of intestines easy. Remove the breast organs by reaching up into the cavity and pulling them out. Cut and remove windpipe. If you proceed in this way rather than by slitting the breastbone up the middle you'll avoid getting blood all over the meat to dirt.

Wipe out the entire body cavity with cloth or paper, if you have any, or with moss and leaves. If water is available you may wash out the cavity, but dry it thoroughly after you have finished the cleansing job. Now you can tote or drag your deer to camp.

If the weather is cold you can transport the animal home on the fender of your auto, being sure that it doesn't rest against the hood, but unless you want it to gather a lot of dirt on the way protect it with canvas or some other covering.

If the weather is warm it may be necessary to skin the deer, quarter it, rub it with salt and wrap it in heavy cloth or blankets before starting your homeward trip. Don't pack the pieces closely together in your car's luggage compartment. Leave the door partly open for ventilation.

Five Suspended Horse Trainers To Get Hearings

First of Alleged Doping Cases Will Be Heard on December 10

BALTIMORE, Dec. 3 (AP) — The Maryland Racing Commission announced today that hearings for five trainers, suspended after chemists reported narcotics found in saliva tests of horses in races at Pimlico last month, would start December 10.

December 11, 10 a. m., E. A. Christwas, trainer of W. L. Brann's New Challenge, fourth race winner November 19.

Dec. 11, 3 p. m., R. F. Curran, trainer of E. D. Talbert's One Only ran fifth in seventh race November 17.

December 12, 10 a. m., C. O. Ferguson, trainer of F. W. Page's Bully Gusher, seventh race winner November 19.

December 12, 3 p. m. V. S. McClintock, trainer and owner of Pilate's Dream, second race winner November 19.

The commission has not named the norcotics, but said the information would be given at the hearings.

J. J. Bauer, trainer of Norwalk stable, was barred for life by the commission several weeks ago. The commission charged that benzedrine was found in the saliva of Armistice Day, a winner at the Laurel fall meeting.

Jimmy McGee, trainer of Morris Wexler's British Buddy, received the minimum suspension of one year after the commission chemist reported caffeine in the horse's saliva. The horse ran at Laurel.

A hearing was held last week for J. D. Byers, trainer of Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's steeplechase winner, Cosey. Chemists reported benzedrine in the test taken after the horse won at Pimlico, but the commission has reserved its decision pending possible introduction of new evidencef rom Beyers's counsel.

Army Given Perfect Score of 1,160 Points by 116 Scribes

By TED MEIER

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—Army's great football team, unbeaten and untied the last two years, was unanimously acclaimed today by sports writers throughout the nation as the best college eleven in the country.

International League Sets Opening Games

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 3 (AP)—The International Baseball League today approved an amendment to baseball laws whereby no legislation could be ruled "detrimental to baseball" by the game's commissioner and set either April 17 or 18 as the opening for its 1946 season.

Holding its annual meeting in advance of the minor league conclave, the league approved a campaign of 154 games, the start of which will be decided after the major leagues' set their opening date.

As usual, the international will commence one day after the majors.

The season, which closes September 8, will have as its opening four games: Buffalo at Newark, Montreal at Jersey City, Toronto at Syracuse, and Rochester at Baltimore. The second half of the "home" openers will start May 1 or 2, reversing the schedule.

Col. "Biff" Jones Quits Nebraska

Resigns when Board Fails To Offer Him Position as Head Coach

LINCOLN, Nebr., Dec. 3. (AP)—Col. Lawrence M. (Biff) Jones has resigned from the University of Nebraska coaching staff after being asked to return only as athletic director instead of the dual post — head coach and athletic director—which he held before the war.

This was disclosed today by release of an exchange of letters between the athletic board and Col. Jones, who is now on war time leave as athletic director at West Point.

A November 13 letter from the board to the "Biffer" said in part: "Both boards (athletic board and board of regents) wish you to know that they would prefer to have you return as director of intercollegiate athletics only, and that the board of intercollegiate athletics proceed at once to engage a head coach who could report for duty not later than February 1."

Col. Jones, under whose guidance the Cornhuskers went to the Rose Bowl in 1940, replied in a letter dated November 28:

"Please consider this as my resignation, effective this date, as head football coach and director of athletics at the University of Nebraska."

Army Gets Lambert Memorial Trophy

NEW YORK, Dec. 3—(AP)—The honors began pouring in on Army's invincible football cadets as a jury of eastern sports writers and broadcasters today unanimously voted the West Point eleven the August V. Lambert Memorial trophy, symbolic of Eastern collegiate football supremacy.

Following the announcement that Felix (Doc) Blanchard, piledriving fullback of the unbeaten and untied Cadets, had been awarded the Heisman memorial trophy as the outstanding gridiron performer of 1945, the Lambert committee disclosed that the Cadets had been selected for the Eastern award by all seventy-eight participants in its poll. It was the second straight year that army has walked off with the trophy.

Navy finished second and Pennsylvania third without any other team being named in the balloting.

"Doc" Blanchard Earns Maxwell Club Award

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3. (AP)—Felix A. (Doc) Blanchard succeeds teammate Glenn Davis as winner of the Maxwell Club's "outstanding football player of the year."

The board of governors of the club announced today the award will be presented December 15 to the line-smashing West Point fullback.

"Bo" McMillan Leads Voting for Football's "Man of the Year"

DES MOINES, Dec. 3 (AP)—The search for football's "man of the year," selected annually by the Football Writers Association of America, has been narrowed to five men, Bert McGrane, secretary of the association, announced today.

Three coaches and two players have been nominated in the preliminary voting. The winner of the award will be one of the five.

The nominees are Coach A. N. (Bo) McMillin, Indiana; Felix Blanchard, Army fullback; Col. Earl (Red) Blaik, Army coach; Herman Wedemeyer, St. Mary's halfback, and Jimmie Phelan, coach of St. Mary's Sugar Bowl team.

The 125 writers who participated in the nationwide balloting gave McMillin sixty-eight first place votes in the preliminary canvass. Final voting is now under way.

Unbeaten Bahram Is Purchased for $130,000

NEW YORK, Dec. 3. (AP)—Charles Lund, South American breeder of Buenos Aires, said today he had purchased the 13-year-old English stallion, Bahram, for $130,000 from an American syndicate headed by Alfred G. Vanderbilt. The syndicate purchased the stallion a decade ago for a reported $190,000.

Lund said he would ship Bahram out of the United States within a week or so to the Chapadmalal Stock Farm at Mar Del Plata in Argentina. Bahram, unbeaten in his racing career in England, is now at Vanderbilt's Sagamore Farm in Maryland.

Miami Wins Bid To Orange Bowl Football Game

By ROGER GREENE

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 3 (AP)—A scrappy University of Miami eleven that jumped from past mediocrity into the limelight as the "cinderella team" of the south, was chosen unanimously today to play against the Holy Cross Crusaders in the Orange Bowl game January 1.

Immediately a wild celebration erupted in downtown Miami and on the university campus in nearby Coral Gables as word spread that the hometowners had won the bid over the No. 2 choice, Louisiana State University's Bayou Tigers.

It will be Miami's first appearance in the Orange Bowl since the inaugural in 1935, when the Hurricanes lost to Bucknell, 26-0. For Holy Cross, it will be the first bowl game of any kind.

Once beaten in a 27-21 thriller by Georgia and once tied, 13-13, by South Carolina, the Hurricanes started off the season with mostly inexperienced freshmen, but they came through a hard schedule with eight wins and 198 points to their opponents' 93.

The clincher game for the Hurricanes came last Friday when the 'Canes, sparked by fullback Harry Ghaul, the South's leading scorer, trampled Auburn 33-7.

Holy Cross's record is slightly more impressive, with clean-cut victories over Dartmouth, Yale, Brown and Boston college, and only a single black mark against its record—a 14-6 trimming from Temple.

Red Skelton Will Return to Air Waves Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Dec. 3—This is the night Red Skelton, recently out of the army, comes back to broadcasting comedy. He will have his old NBC Tuesday night spot at 10:30 which was occupied during his eighteen months service plus a couple months vacation.

To start things off, he will have Bob Hope as guest, and there will be a realignment of his foil characters in view of the fact Ozzie and Harriet no longer are available because they have a CBS program of their own.

A subject dealing with the medium over which it functions is to concern American Forum on MBS at 9:30. It will be taken up in the form of this question "How Can We Keep Radio Free?" The panel of four will be made up of speakers associated with radio in one way or another and will include FCC Commissioner Clifford J. Durr.

Two Roberts of the movies get on the CBS air in different programs. Taylor is to appear in the CBS Theater of Romance at 8:30 along with an unannounced-in-advance feminine lead for "Magificent Obsession." Young will go along with Louise Albritton as "Mr. and Mrs. Cugat" for This Is My Best at 9:30, also CBS.

Woody Herman takes the guest spot in the Cornelia Otis Skinner program of NBC at 8:30. Barry Wood continues as the singing master of ceremonies.

Alfred P. Sloan's talk on cancer control and cure as delivered in New York will be carried by ABC at 9:45 . . . . Other ABC talks: 7:30 Eugene Grace on "Steel Wage Strike Vote;" 10:30 CIO series, Philip Murray.

Red Skelton Will Return to Air Waves Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Dec. 3—This is the night Red Skelton, recently out of the army, comes back to broadcasting comedy. He will have his old NBC Tuesday night spot at 10:30 which was occupied during his eighteen months service plus a couple months vacation.

To start things off, he will have Bob Hope as guest, and there will be a realignment of his foil characters in view of the fact Ozzie and Harriet no longer are available because they have a CBS program of their own.

A subject dealing with the medium over which it functions is to concern American Forum on MBS at 9:30. It will be taken up in the form of this question "How Can We Keep Radio Free?" The panel of four will be made up of speakers associated with radio in one way or another and will include FCC Commissioner Clifford J. Durr.

Two Roberts of the movies get on the CBS air in different programs. Taylor is to appear in the CBS Theater of Romance at 8:30 along with an unannounced-in-advance feminine lead for "Magificent Obsession." Young will go along with Louise Albritton as "Mr. and Mrs. Cugat" for This Is My Best at 9:30, also CBS.

Woody Herman takes the guest spot in the Cornelia Otis Skinner program of NBC at 8:30. Barry Wood continues as the singing master of ceremonies.

Alfred P. Sloan's talk on cancer control and cure as delivered in New York will be carried by ABC at 9:45 . . . . Other ABC talks: 7:30 Eugene Grace on "Steel Wage Strike Vote;" 10:30 CIO series, Philip Murray.

Teachers To Hold Meeting Today On Conservation

Fourth in Series of Conferences To Be Held at Mt. Royal School

Allegany County's conservation conscious elementary school teachers will hold the fourth in a series of conferences today at 2:30 o'clock at Mt. Royal school where the subject will be "Growth of Children Through Experiences in the Wise Use of Natural Resources."

Miss Nan Livingston and Miss Marian Wintermeyer, chairman and co-chairman respectively of the planning committee, will present the report prepared by the committee members including Eva Griffith, Florence Howell, Bernice Winner, Elsie Roland, Lillian Hamilton, Betty Roemmelmeyer and Ruth Hanson.

The committee members have held a number of sessions to formulate a program, meeting independently and also with members of the supervisory staff. Their report will contain recommendations regarding future projects after ten weeks of study and work.

Plan Two-fold Grograms

So far, only fifty teachers have participated in the program that included field trips to various farms in Allegany county. Now, the group hopes to do some missionary work with all teachers in the school system to increase their understanding of conservation.

After considerable study, the committee members feel that any program submitted should consist of two main parts, namely, a program for teacher growth and a program for pupil participation.

Committee members will point out how the present school curriculum offers potentialities for conservation teaching and will acquaint teachers with resources for conservation and offer definite plans for teacher growth and knowledge of conservation. The report also covers the topic regarding pupil participation in a sound conservation program.

Committee members engaged in the study have received assistance from Charles L. Kopp, school superintendent; Miss Ruby Marie Adams, director of elementary education, and Miss Mildred Willison, Miss Jane Botsford and Miss Winifred Greene, supervisors.

The principal address at today's conference will be made by Miss Grace Alder, Maryland elementary supervisor, Baltimore. Miss Alder will discuss conservation as related to elementary school children.

Panel Discussion Planned

The rogram will conclude with a talk by Mr. Kopp who will give a point of view on the subject of conservation and various ramifications in regard to the subject.

Miss Adams will preside at the meeting and will introduce the various seakers. Following the talks and report of the planning committee, there will be a panel discussion.

Hostesses for the affair will be the Mt. Royal faculty and the home room mothers of the school.

Members of the Planning committee yesterday expressed their appreciation for the support they have received from the various conservation leaders in this area.

Petty Officer Paul E. Owens Gets One Day off and Kills Big Deer

ON FURLOUGH — T-5 Anna Lee Lippold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Lippold, Route 2, Christie road, who is stationed at Newton D. Baker General hospital, at Martinsburg, W. Va., is home on a ten-day furlough. She was recently transferred from filing in plastic surgery to the Finance division. She entered the service in September 1944. T-5 Lippold is a graduate of Girl's Central high.

Petty Officer Paul E. Owens dropped around to see his CO the other day and informed him that he would like a furlough for the purpose of going deer hunting with his father, Clarence W. Owens, 112 Pennsylvania avenue.

Undaunted, Owens packed up and in leaving told his men that he would bring them back some venison. The men smiled broadly and made a number of remarks that expressed a certain amount of disbelief.

Leave Home Early

Owens came home on the train Sunday night and he and his father started forth at 5 a. m. the next day, "long before daylight," according to Mrs. Owens who added that she could never understand why they get up so early just to go someplace and wait for it to become light enough to see. However, they always do it, Mrs. Owens said.

Owens and his father drove to Romney and there were joined by Gilbert Starnes. The three men drove on west of Romney and there sat down to wait for daylight, as Mrs. Owens said. While waiting, Petty Officer Owens commented that he had "almost" shot a buck several times in the past and one time was "almost run over by one which he failed to get."

Around 1 p. m. the trio reached the vicinity near Miller's orchards and Petty Officer Owens spotted a buck and it was a big one. The buck was about eighty yards away when he drew a bead on it with his .32 caliber Winchester Special. He fired and the buck went down.

Buck Weighs 200 Pounds

Petty Officer Owens buck proved to be an eight pointer and weighed 200 pounds.

Later, Starnes shot a six point 156 pound buck but a third buck spotted by the trio got away.

Last night, while preparing to return to camp per orders, Petty Officer Owens stated that he would take some venison back to camp as he had promised and would also send a portion of deer meat to his wife who is now living in Virginia.

Owens said the animal had a magnificent head and he planned to have it mounted.

Mrs. Owens said she was very glad her son finally got a buck, especially in view of the fact that he had such a short time to get it. She said her son had been out five straight times in other years and failed to get one.

Owens said he did not believe he had been unsuccessful quite that many times but admitted having been out "several times" in the past without any luck and also that a buck once 'almost ran over me." However, he was unable to go deer hunting last season due to the press of business.

Owens has been in the navy for two years. He said he expected to come home for Christmas with the prospect of having seven days.

He did not say if he planned to give a piece of venison to his CO or not."

Discharges To Be Given Minute Men Tonight

The final step in disbanding the Reserve militaia (Maryland Minute Men) will take place tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the Central YMCA when Lt. Col. William Preston Lane, commanding officer of the Eighth Battalion, will present honorable discharges to approximately 1,000 members of the organization.

Prior to the meeting, Lane will be honored with a dinner at the Central YMCA at 6:30 p. m. with the commanding officers, or representatives of fifteen Allegany counties and one Garrett county company present. Other special guests who will attend are Capt. D. R. Snively, executive officer of the Eighth Battalion; and Lt. R. C. Carder, property officer.

While the dinner is limited to twenty persons, Captain Thomas Lohr Richards, of Company 841 and battalion liason officer, said all members are invited to attend the ceremony when discharges are presented.

Post Office To Give Veterans Preference On Christmas Jobs

Virtually all the extra workers selected to help handle the Christmas rush at the Cumberland post office will be honorably discharged veterans, James C. Shriver, postmaster, announced yesterday.

The action, postal authorities said, is in line with an order in a recent postal bulletin which directed postmasters to give preference to veterans who are qualified for work in the department.

The postmaster added that a few persons who are familiar with the office here from past experience will also be employed.

M. W. Grove Secures Occupancy Permit

Matthew W. Grove, 724 Hill Top drive, passenger agent for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, secured a permit in the office of the city engineer yesterday to use the first floor of a building at 104 Frederick street as a sales and service store for radios and phonographs, under the business name of the Standard Company.

The building, located in a business zoning district, was previously used as a cleaning and tailoring establishment. The owner is Frank Patitucci, 65 North Centre street.

The one-story addition, which will measure eight by sixteen feet, will have a concrete block foundation, frame walls, and a slate surface composition roof. Construction, estimated to cost $125, will be done by the owner.

Zoning Appeals Board Will Meet Today

One of the appeals to be heard is that of Francis G. Baker and Tony Kruczewski, whose application for a permit to occupy a building at the rear of 539 North Mechanic street as a garage and welding shop was denied November 27 by Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer. The other was filed November 23 by R. M. Lewis, who was denied a permit to use part of the first floor of a building at 245 Offutt street as a grocery store.

AVIATION SPEAKERS—Josh Lee, (left), member of the Civil Aeronautics Board, former United States Senator from Oklahoma, and Jennings Randolph, (right) member of Congress from the Second West Virginia district, will be the principal speakers at the aviation meeting of the chamber of commerce, which will be held at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club tonight at 6:30 o'clock.

Aviation Will Be Discussed Tonight At Dinner Meeting

Josh Lee and Jennings Randolph To Speak to Commerce Group

Former Senator Josh Lee, Oklahoma, recently reappointed to a six year term as a member of the Civil Aeronautics Board, will make the principal address at tonight's aviation dinner meeting of the chamber of commerce at 6:30 p. m. at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. There will be 125 guests.

Lee will be introduced by Rep. Jennings Randolph, West Virginia. Rep. Randolph's remarks and Lee's address will be broadcast by Station WTBO from 8 to 9 p. m.

Lee, who had a colorful Senate career, envisions postwar aviation as bringing about "the greatest age of commerce and travel yet dreamed", in which air lines will help oreak down differences between countries and create a good-neighbor relationship throughout the world.

As early as 1940, Senator Lee advocated a pilot-training program for "not 5,000 pilots but 250,000 pilots" and went on record as favoring a "vastly accelerated air program" for defense purposes.

His was the first voice raised in the Senate for the transfer of fifty over-age destroyers to England and he forsaw the need for a declaration of national emergency in 1941, urging that it be done shortly before action was taken by the President.

Roy W. Eves, president of the chamber of commerce, will preside at tonight's meeting. Rep. Randolph will be introduced by C. P. Jolley, chairman of the membership activities committee of the chamber.

Local Sailor Escapes From Disciplinary Barracks at Norfolk

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 3—(AP)—Three military prisoners were reported at large after escaping from the United States naval disciplinary barracks, naval station, today by climbing over the south fence of the confinement station.

The escapees were listed as Roy Thomas Consford, 19, of Nacodoches, Texas, seaman second class; Donald W. Smith, age not given, of Cumberland, Md., apprentice seaman; and Robert Sunday, 19, of Detroit, Mich., private in the marine corps.

Office of public information of the Fifth naval district reported the prisoners were fired on by a tower guard as they climbed the fence to freedom, but it is not believed that any were injured. At the time of their escape they were thought to be wearing dungarees with the letter "P" on each knee and peacoats with the letter "P" on the backs.

PROPOSED ZONING CHANGE PROTESTED

Proposed changing of the zoning classification for the area bounded by Valley, Bond and Knox streets and Henderson avenue from residential to commercial was protested yesterday by a delegation of residents of the 400-block Henderson avenue at a meeting of the mayor and city council.

The council indicated last week it would change the classification on the appeal of William P. Roeder, who was denied a permit to erect a storage building in the rear of 437 Henderson avenue. At that time Roeder stated the block has more than fifty per cent of its area devoted to business structures.

Two of the Henderson avenue residents, Mrs. Clara M. Schute and Mrs. S. N. Long, denied yesterday that the area is largely composed of business buildings.

Charles Z. Heskett, city attorney, said he has ascertained that most of the block is residential and that the proposed ordinance changing the classification should be held up pending a complete investigation by Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer.

In a letter to the council, Benjamin LaNeve asked that the council explain its action in denying him a permit last week to operate a pool room and soft drink establishment at 111 North Centre street. The letter was filed.

Miliza Korjus, Polish Concert Star, To Sing Here

Capacity Crowd Expected To Attend Recital at Fort Hill Tonight

Miliza Korjus, Polish coloratura soprano who will be presented by the Cumberland Concert Association in a recital at 8:30 p. m. today in the auditorium at Fort Hill high school, arrived here last night from Indianapolis, where she gave two concerts within the past few days.

Theb londe star of "The Great Waltz" said in an interview shortly after her arrival that she has no immediate plans for making another motion picture, although she added that she would like to do another film based on the life of a composer.

Miss Korjus said that she did not become a member of an operatic company because operas involve "too much work". She added that her present concert tour of the United States began about two months ago and will end December 15. She will go to Springfield, O., from Cumberland, after which she will give a final recital in Clemson, S. C.

Beginning her concert career at the age of seventeen in Revel, Estonia, Miss Korjus has sung in recitals in nearly every European metropolis, with numerous performances before royalty. After appearing in "The Great Waltz," she went to South America, but she returned to the United States for her first concert tour last year under the management of Charles L. Wagner. She makes her winter home in New York, and spends each summer in Hollywood.

Mrs. A. N. Golladay, secretary of the local association, said last night that a capacity audience is expected to attend Miss Korjus's recital tonight. Men and women in uniform will be admitted free.

Miss Korjus was accompanied here by her companion, Mrs. Carlotto Franco, whose home is in Brazil; her business manager, John Cuneo, who was in Cumberland when the opera "Rigoletto" was produced in October; and Glauco D'Attili, pianist, and Henry Bove, flutist, who will assist Miss Korjus at the recital.

Tickets, which are now on sale at the Music shop, 5 South Liberty street, will be sold at the box office after 7 p. m.

The program will include: "Alleluia," Mozart, and "Aria from 'Norma'," Bellini, Miss Korjus; "Aria from 'Lucia de Lammermoor'," (Mad Scene), Donizetti, and "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark," Bishop, Miss Korjus, with flute obligato; "Organ Toccato and Fugue in D Minor," Bach-Tausig, and "Sonata in D, opus 40, No. 3" (first part), Clementi, D'Attili; "Villanela," Delaqua, and "Pizzicato," Delibes, Miss Korjus.

"Melodie," Bove; "Menuetto," Mozart; "Gavotte," Loeillet, and "Tamburin," J. A. Hasse, by Bove; "Charmant Oiseau" (Charming Bird), David, and "The Gypsy and the Bird," Benedict, Miss Korjus, with flute obligato; "Rondo Capriccioso," Mendelssohn, and "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2," Liszt, by D'Attili; "One Day When We Were Young," from The Great Waltz, Strauss, and "Vienna Woods," from The Great Waltz, Strauss, Miss Korjus.

Pistol and Rifle Club Members Are Seeking New Range

Members of Cumberland Pistol and Rifle Clubs are hopeful that today's visit by Lt. Col. William Preston Lane will mark another step forward in their program to have a regulation rifle range constructed somewhere in the Cumberland area.

Col. Lane, commander of the Eighth Battalion, commented favorably on the proposed project this summer when members of the reserve militia discussed the possibility of constructing a range with him. Lane said when he came to Cumberland he would like to have a look at any proposed sites.

Last night, Thomas Lohr Richards, commanding officer of Company 841 and liaison officer of the Eighth Battalion, said that time permitting, Lane would be asked to look over a prospective site sometime today.

Richards said that plans to construct such a range were entirely too tentative as yet to reveal where the proposed site is located but he admitted that some preliminary investigation had been done in connection with the proposed project.

Marksmen in this area are of the opinion that a regulation 500 yard range would be a worthwhile project. The range would not only be used by National Guardsmen but by various other organizations interested in good marksmanship.

Detective Edwin R. Lilya, who investigated, said the boy was struck by a car driven by Clarence Freeland, 101 Humbird street, and added that the driver took the lad to the hospital.

Freeland told Detective Lilya the lad emerged from between a truck and a car in front of North End Social club, 700 block, North Mechanic street, and ran against the front fender of the car. The driver stopped the car within a few feet, the officer added.

Veterans from Four States Obtain Marriage Licenses in Cumberland

Total of 357 Wedding Permits Issued Here in Month of November

Returned veterans from four states and their prospective brides converged on the Allegany county court house again in November where a total of 357 marriage licenses were issued, Clerk of Court Robert Jackson, announces.

The figure, the highest of the year, was largely attributed to the discharged veterans from Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio who have been giving attaches in the clerk's office a very brisk workout.

If the matrimonial intentions of the comparitively small number of servicemen already are any indication, Jackson's helpers shudder to think what it will be like when the main body of veterans arrive back in their native land.

Among the witnesses will be Linne H Corson, deputy county medical examiner, who said Fadley, died of traumatic shock without regaining consciousness and added the local man suffered a fractured skull and other injuries.

DEALER ASKS PERMIT TO SELL TREES; CAN DO CITY GOOD TURN

A Jefferson county, W. Va., man yesterday caused considerable mirth in the city council chamber when he told of giving the chief of police, a sergeant and several officers Christmas trees several years ago, in applying for another permit to operate a Christmas tree stand in city hall plaza.

The man who gave his name as "Mr. Collins," said that he could do the city a good turn because he would sell his trees one third cheaper than most dealers. Collins said that L. L. Lloyd, whom he described as a former sheriff, of Romney, W. Va., would run the stand.

Mayor T. S. Post said the matter should be referred to Commissioner Hunter B. Helfrich who promptly said he wanted nothing to do with it and requested that the matter be placed before Police Chief Oscar A. Eyerman.

Commissioner James Orr said he would investigate a statement made by Collins that "last year the police sent the patrol wagon down to South Cumberland and I gave five, or maybe it was six trees to the policemen."

Orr said he would issue orders that the patrol wagon and other police equipment is not to be used for any other purpose than regular police procedure.

Insurance Firm Is Sued by Aunt Of Dead Soldier

Mollie Morral Files Suit for $5,000 against People's Life

The aunt of a young waist gunner in a Flying Fortress who was shot down in flames over the North Sea, near Emden, Germany, in September, 1943, yesterday docketed a $5,000 damage suit against the Peoples Life Insurance Company to compel them to pay off on the policy they issued to her nephew who was killed in action.

According to the petition filed by Edward J. Ryan and William L. Wilson, Jr., The Peoples Life Insurance Company issued a $1,000 policy on the life of Gerald A. Heavner, of McCoole, April 7, 1938. Heavner named his aunt, Mollie Morral, the complainant in the case, as the beneficiary.

Prior to going into the service, Ryan and Wilson state that Heavner received permission from the insurance company to "engage in military or naval service."

The attorneys state that Heavner had paid all premiums up to the time of his death and that the company continued to accept payments on the policy after Heavner's family had learned that his plane had been shot down in flames September 27, 1943.

Observers of the action over the North Sea reported that Staff Sgt. Heavner's plane had plunged down in flames but the War department could not state with certainty as to whether Heavner and the other crew members had perished. It was not until September 28, 1944, a year later, that the War department officially informed the family that Sgt. Heavner was dead.

The beneficiary was unable to collect the insurance policy issued on Heavner's life, the attorneys stated. The attorneys admit that the policy's double indemnity clause was voided when Heavner went into action but aver that his legal beneficiary has every right to the other benefits.

Teachers To Hold Meeting Today On Conservation

Fourth in Series of Conferences To Be Held at Mt. Royal School

Allegany County's conservation conscious elementary school teachers will hold the fourth in a series of conferences today at 2:30 o'clock at Mt. Royal school where the subject will be "Growth of Children Through Experiences in the Wise Use of Natural Resources."

Miss Nan Livingston and Miss Marian Wintermeyer, chairman and co-chairman respectively of the planning committee, will present the report prepared by the committee members including Eva Griffith, Florence Howell, Bernice Winner, Elsie Roland, Lillian Hamilton, Betty Roemmelmeyer and Ruth Hanson.

The committee members have held a number of sessions to formulate a program, meeting independently and also with members of the supervisory staff. Their report will contain recommendations regarding future projects after ten weeks of study and work.

Plan Two-fold Grograms

So far, only fifty teachers have participated in the program that included field trips to various farms in Allegany county. Now, the group hopes to do some missionary work with all teachers in the school system to increase their understanding of conservation.

After considerable study, the committee members feel that any program submitted should consist of two main parts, namely, a program for teacher growth and a program for pupil participation.

Committee members will point out how the present school curriculum offers potentialities for conservation teaching and will acquaint teachers with resources for conservation and offer definite plans for teacher growth and knowledge of conservation. The report also covers the topic regarding pupil participation in a sound conservation program.

Committee members engaged in the study have received assistance from Charles L. Kopp, school superintendent; Miss Ruby Marie Adams, director of elementary education, and Miss Mildred Willison, Miss Jane Botsford and Miss Winifred Greene, supervisors.

The principal address at today's conference will be made by Miss Grace Alder, Maryland elementary supervisor, Baltimore. Miss Alder will discuss conservation as related to elementary school children.

Panel Discussion Planned

The rogram will conclude with a talk by Mr. Kopp who will give a point of view on the subject of conservation and various ramifications in regard to the subject.

Miss Adams will preside at the meeting and will introduce the various seakers. Following the talks and report of the planning committee, there will be a panel discussion.

Another feature of the meeting will be a conservation exhibit arranged by the West Side faculty.

Hostesses for the affair will be the Mt. Royal faculty and the home room mothers of the school.

Members of the Planning committee yesterday expressed their appreciation for the support they have received from the various conservation leaders in this area.

Petty Officer Paul E. Owens Gets One Day off and Kills Big Deer

ON FURLOUGH — T-5 Anna Lee Lippold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Lippold, Route 2, Christie road, who is stationed at Newton D. Baker General hospital, at Martinsburg, W. Va., is home on a ten-day furlough. She was recently transferred from filing in plastic surgery to the Finance division. She entered the service in September 1944. T-5 Lippold is a graduate of Girl's Central high.

Petty Officer Paul E. Owens dropped around to see his CO the other day and informed him that he would like a furlough for the purpose of going deer hunting with his father, Clarence W. Owens, 112 Pennsylvania avenue.

The CO, a model of generosity, gave Petty Officer exactly one day to come home, kill a deer and get back to camp.

Undaunted, Owens packed up and in leaving told his men that he would bring them back some venison. The men smiled broadly and made a number of remarks that expressed a certain amount of disbelief.

Leave Home Early

Owens came home on the train Sunday night and he and his father started forth at 5 a. m. the next day, "long before daylight," according to Mrs. Owens who added that she could never understand why they get up so early just to go someplace and wait for it to become light enough to see. However, they always do it, Mrs. Owens said.

Owens and his father drove to Romney and there were joined by Gilbert Starnes. The three men drove on west of Romney and there sat down to wait for daylight, as Mrs. Owens said. While waiting, Petty Officer Owens commented that he had "almost" shot a buck several times in the past and one time was "almost run over by one which he failed to get."

Around 1 p. m. the trio reached the vicinity near Miller's orchards and Petty Officer Owens spotted a buck and it was a big one. The buck was about eighty yards away when he drew a bead on it with his .32 caliber Winchester Special. He fired and the buck went down.

Buck Weighs 200 Pounds

Later, Starnes shot a six point 156 pound buck but a third buck spotted by the trio got away.

Last night, while preparing to return to camp per orders, Petty Officer Owens stated that he would take some venison back to camp as he had promised and would also send a portion of deer meat to his wife who is now living in Virginia.

Owens said the animal had a magnificent head and he planned to have it mounted.

Mrs. Owens said she was very glad her son finally got a buck, especially in view of the fact that he had such a short time to get it. She said her son had been out five straight times in other years and failed to get one.

Owens said he did not believe he had been unsuccessful quite that many times but admitted having been out "several times" in the past without any luck and also that a buck once 'almost ran over me." However, he was unable to go deer hunting last season due to the press of business.

Owens has been in the navy for two years. He said he expected to come home for Christmas with the prospect of having seven days.

He did not say if he planned to give a piece of venison to his CO or not."

Post Office To Give Veterans Preference On Christmas Jobs

Virtually all the extra workers selected to help handle the Christmas rush at the Cumberland post office will be honorably discharged veterans, James C. Shriver, postmaster, announced yesterday.

The veterans will be selected from a list of about 100 eligibles recently approved by the postal service.

The action, postal authorities said, is in line with an order in a recent postal bulletin which directed postmasters to give preference to veterans who are qualified for work in the department.

The postmaster added that a few persons who are familiar with the office here from past experience will also be employed.

M. W. Grove Secures Occupancy Permit

Matthew W. Grove, 724 Hill Top drive, passenger agent for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, secured a permit in the office of the city engineer yesterday to use the first floor of a building at 104 Frederick street as a sales and service store for radios and phonographs, under the business name of the Standard Company.

The building, located in a business zoning district, was previously used as a cleaning and tailoring establishment. The owner is Frank Patitucci, 65 North Centre street.

A permit was secured by Ernest Cunningham, 675 Fayette street, to demolish the front porch at his home and to build a sun porch at one side of the building.

The one-story addition, which will measure eight by sixteen feet, will have a concrete block foundation, frame walls, and a slate surface composition roof. Construction, estimated to cost $125, will be done by the owner.

Zoning Appeals Board Will Meet Today

One of the appeals to be heard is that of Francis G. Baker and Tony Kruczewski, whose application for a permit to occupy a building at the rear of 539 North Mechanic street as a garage and welding shop was denied November 27 by Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer. The other was filed November 23 by R. M. Lewis, who was denied a permit to use part of the first floor of a building at 245 Offutt street as a grocery store.

AVIATION SPEAKERS—Josh Lee, (left), member of the Civil Aeronautics Board, former United States Senator from Oklahoma, and Jennings Randolph, (right) member of Congress from the Second West Virginia district, will be the principal speakers at the aviation meeting of the chamber of commerce, which will be held at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club tonight at 6:30 o'clock.

Aviation Will Be Discussed Tonight At Dinner Meeting

Josh Lee and Jennings Randolph To Speak to Commerce Group

Former Senator Josh Lee, Oklahoma, recently reappointed to a six year term as a member of the Civil Aeronautics Board, will make the principal address at tonight's aviation dinner meeting of the chamber of commerce at 6:30 p. m. at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. There will be 125 guests.

Lee will be introduced by Rep. Jennings Randolph, West Virginia. Rep. Randolph's remarks and Lee's address will be broadcast by Station WTBO from 8 to 9 p. m.

Lee, who had a colorful Senate career, envisions postwar aviation as bringing about "the greatest age of commerce and travel yet dreamed", in which air lines will help break down differences between countries and create a good-neighbor relationship throughout the world.

As early as 1940, Senator Lee advocated a pilot-training program for "not 5,000 pilots but 250,000 pilots" and went on record as favoring a "vastly accelerated air program" for defense purposes.

His was the first voice raised in the Senate for the transfer of fifty over-age destroyers to England and he forsaw the need for a declaration of national emergency in 1941, urging that it be done shortly before action was taken by the President.

Roy W. Eves, president of the chamber of commerce, will preside at tonight's meeting. Rep. Randolph will be introduced by C. P. Jolley, chairman of the membership activities committee of the chamber.

Special guests will be William J. Graham, president of the Graham Aviation Flying School, Pittsburgh, and John Chapman, manager of the Cumberland Airport.

PROPOSED ZONING CHANGE PROTESTED

Proposed changing of the zoning classification for the area bounded by Valley, Bond and Knox streets and Henderson avenue from residential to commercial was protested yesterday by a delegation of residents of the 400-block Henderson avenue at a meeting of the mayor and city council.

The council indicated last week it would change the classification on the appeal of William P. Roeder, who was denied a permit to erect a storage building in the rear of 437 Henderson avenue. At that time Roeder stated the block has more than fifty per cent of its area devoted to business structures.

Two of the Henderson avenue residents, Mrs. Clara M. Schute and Mrs. S. N. Long, denied yesterday that the area is largely composed of business buildings.

Charles Z. Heskett, city attorney, said he has ascertained that most of the block is residential and that the proposed ordinance changing the classification should be held up pending a complete investigation by Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer.

In a letter to the council, Benjamin LaNeve asked that the council explain its action in denying him a permit last week to operate a pool room and soft drink establishment at 111 North Centre street. The letter was filed.

Miliza Korjus, Polish Concert Star, To Sing Here

Capacity Crowd Expected To Attend Recital at Fort Hill Tonight

Miliza Korjus, Polish coloratura soprano who will be presented by the Cumberland Concert Association in a recital at 8:30 p. m. today in the auditorium at Fort Hill high school, arrived here last night from Indianapolis, where she gave two concerts within the past few days.

Theb londe star of "The Great Waltz" said in an interview shortly after her arrival that she has no immediate plans for making another motion picture, although she added that she would like to do another film based on the life of a composer.

Miss Korjus said that she did not become a member of an operatic company because operas involve "too much work". She added that her present concert tour of the United States began about two months ago and will end December 15. She will go to Springfield, O., from Cumberland, after which she will give a final recital in Clemson, S. C.

Beginning her concert career at the age of seventeen in Revel, Estonia, Miss Korjus has sung in recitals in nearly every European metropolis, with numerous performances before royalty. After appearing in "The Great Waltz," she went to South America, but she returned to the United States for her first concert tour last year under the management of Charles L. Wagner. She makes her winter home in New York, and spends each summer in Hollywood.

Mrs. A. N. Golladay, secretary of the local association, said last night that a capacity audience is expected to attend Miss Korjus's recital tonight. Men and women in uniform will be admitted free.

Miss Korjus was accompanied here by her companion, Mrs. Carlotto Franco, whose home is in Brazil; her business manager, John Cuneo, who was in Cumberland when the opera "Rigoletto" was produced in October; and Glauco D'Attili, pianist, and Henry Bove, flutist, who will assist Miss Korjus at the recital.

Tickets, which are now on sale at the Music shop, 5 South Liberty street, will be sold at the box office after 7 p. m.

The program will include: "Alleluia," Mozart, and "Aria from 'Norma'," Bellini, Miss Korjus; "Aria from 'Lucia de Lammermoor'," (Mad Scene), Donizetti, and "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark," Bishop, Miss Korjus, with flute obligato; "Organ Toccato and Fugue in D Minor, Bach-Tausig, and "Sonata in D, opus 40, No. 3" (first part), Clementi, D'Attili; "Villanela," Delaqua, and "Pizzicato," Delibes, Miss Korjus.

Hasse, by Bove; "Charmant Oiseau" (Charming Bird), David, and "The Gypsy and the Bird," Benedict, Miss Korjus, with flute obligato; "Rondo Capriccioso," Mendelssohn, and "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2," Liszt, by D'Attili; "One Day When We Were Young," from The Great Waltz, Strauss, and "Vienna Woods," from The Great Waltz, Strauss, Miss Korjus.

Pistol and Rifle Club Members Are Seeking New Range

Members of Cumberland Pistol and Rifle Clubs are hopeful that today's visit by Lt. Col. William Preston Lane will mark another step forward in their program to have a regulation rifle range constructed somewhere in the Cumberland area.

Col. Lane, commander of the Eighth Battalion, commented favorably on the proposed project this summer when members of the reserve militia discussed the possibility of constructing a range with him. Lane said when he came to Cumberland he would like to have a look at any proposed sites.

Last night, Thomas Lohr Richards, commanding officer of Company 841 and liaison officer of the Eighth Battalion, said that time permitting, Lane would be asked to look over a prospective site sometime today.

Richards said that plans to construct such a range were entirely too tentative as yet to reveal where the proposed site is located but he admitted that some preliminary investigation had been done in connection with the proposed project.

An indorsement of the project by Lane to the State Military Department would carry some weight, rifle enthusiasts feel.

Marksmen in this area are of the opinion that a regulation 500 yard range would be a worthwhile project. The range would not only be used by National Guardsmen but by various other organizations interested in good marksmanship.

Veterans from Four States Obtain Marriage Licenses in Cumberland

Total of 357 Wedding Permits Issued Here in Month of November

Returned veterans from four states and their prospective brides converged on the Allegany county court house again in November where a total of 357 marriage licenses were issued, Clerk of Court Robert Jackson, announces.

The figure, the highest of the year, was largely attributed to the discharged veterans from Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio who have been giving attaches in the clerk's office a very brisk workout.

If the matrimonial intentions of the comparitively small number of servicemen already are any indication, Jackson's helpers shudder to think what it will be like when the main body of veterans arrive back in their native land.

DEALER ASKS PERMIT TO SELL TREES; CAN DO CITY GOOD TURN

A Jefferson county, W. Va. man yesterday caused considerable mirth in the city council chamber when he told of giving the chief of police, a sergeant and several officers Christmas trees several years ago, in applying for another permit to operate a Christmas tree stand in city hall plaza.

The man who gave his name as "Mr. Collins," said that he could do the city a good turn because he would sell his trees one third cheaper than most dealers. Collins said that L. L. Lloyd, whom he described as a former sheriff, of Romney, W. Va., would run the stand.

Mayor T. S. Post said the matter should be referred to Commissioner Hunter B. Helfrich who promptly said he wanted nothing to do with it and requested that the matter be placed before Police Chief Oscar A. Eyerman.

Commissioner James Orr said he would investigate a statement made by Collins that "last year the police sent the patrol wagon down to South Cumberland and I gave five, or maybe it was six trees to the policemen."

Orr said he would issue orders that the patrol wagon and other police equipment is not to be used for any other purpose than regular police procedure.

Insurance Firm Is Sued by Aunt Of Dead Soldier

Mollie Morral Files Suit for $5,000 against People's Life

The aunt of a young waist gunner in a Flying Fortress who was shot down in flames over the North Sea, near Emden, Germany, in September, 1943, yesterday docketed a $5,000 damage suit against the Peoples Life Insurance Company to compel them to pay off on the policy they issued to her nephew who was killed in action.

According to the petition filed by Edward J. Ryan and William L. Wilson, Jr., The Peoples Life Insurance Company issued a $1,000 policy on the life of Gerald A. Heavner, of McCoole, April 7, 1938. Heavner named his aunt, Mollie Morral, the complainant in the case, as the beneficiary.

Prior to going into the service, Ryan and Wilson state that Heavner received permission from the insurance company to "engage in military or naval service."

The attorneys state that Heavner had paid all premiums up to the time of his death and that the company continued to accept payments on the policy after Heavner's family had learned that his plane had been shot down in flames September 27, 1943.

Observers of the action over the North Sea reported that Staff Sgt. Heavner's plane had plunged down in flames but the War department could not state with certainty as to whether Heavner and the other crew members had perished. It was not until September 28, 1944, a year later, that the War department officially informed the family that Sgt. Heavner was dead.

The beneficiary was unable to collect the insurance policy issued on Heavner's life, the attorneys stated. The attorneys admit that the policy's double indemnity clause was voided when Heavner went into action but aver that his legal beneficiary has every right to the other benefits.
